Lasting Impressions

1984 was a year that would not soon be forgotten by the students at Southwest Guilford High School. For everyone, from the freshmen to the senior class of 1985, it was a year of Lasting Impressions. Every event was a thing that would be remembered for a lifetime, from changes made in the school administration, to those everyday happenings that were taken for granted at the time.

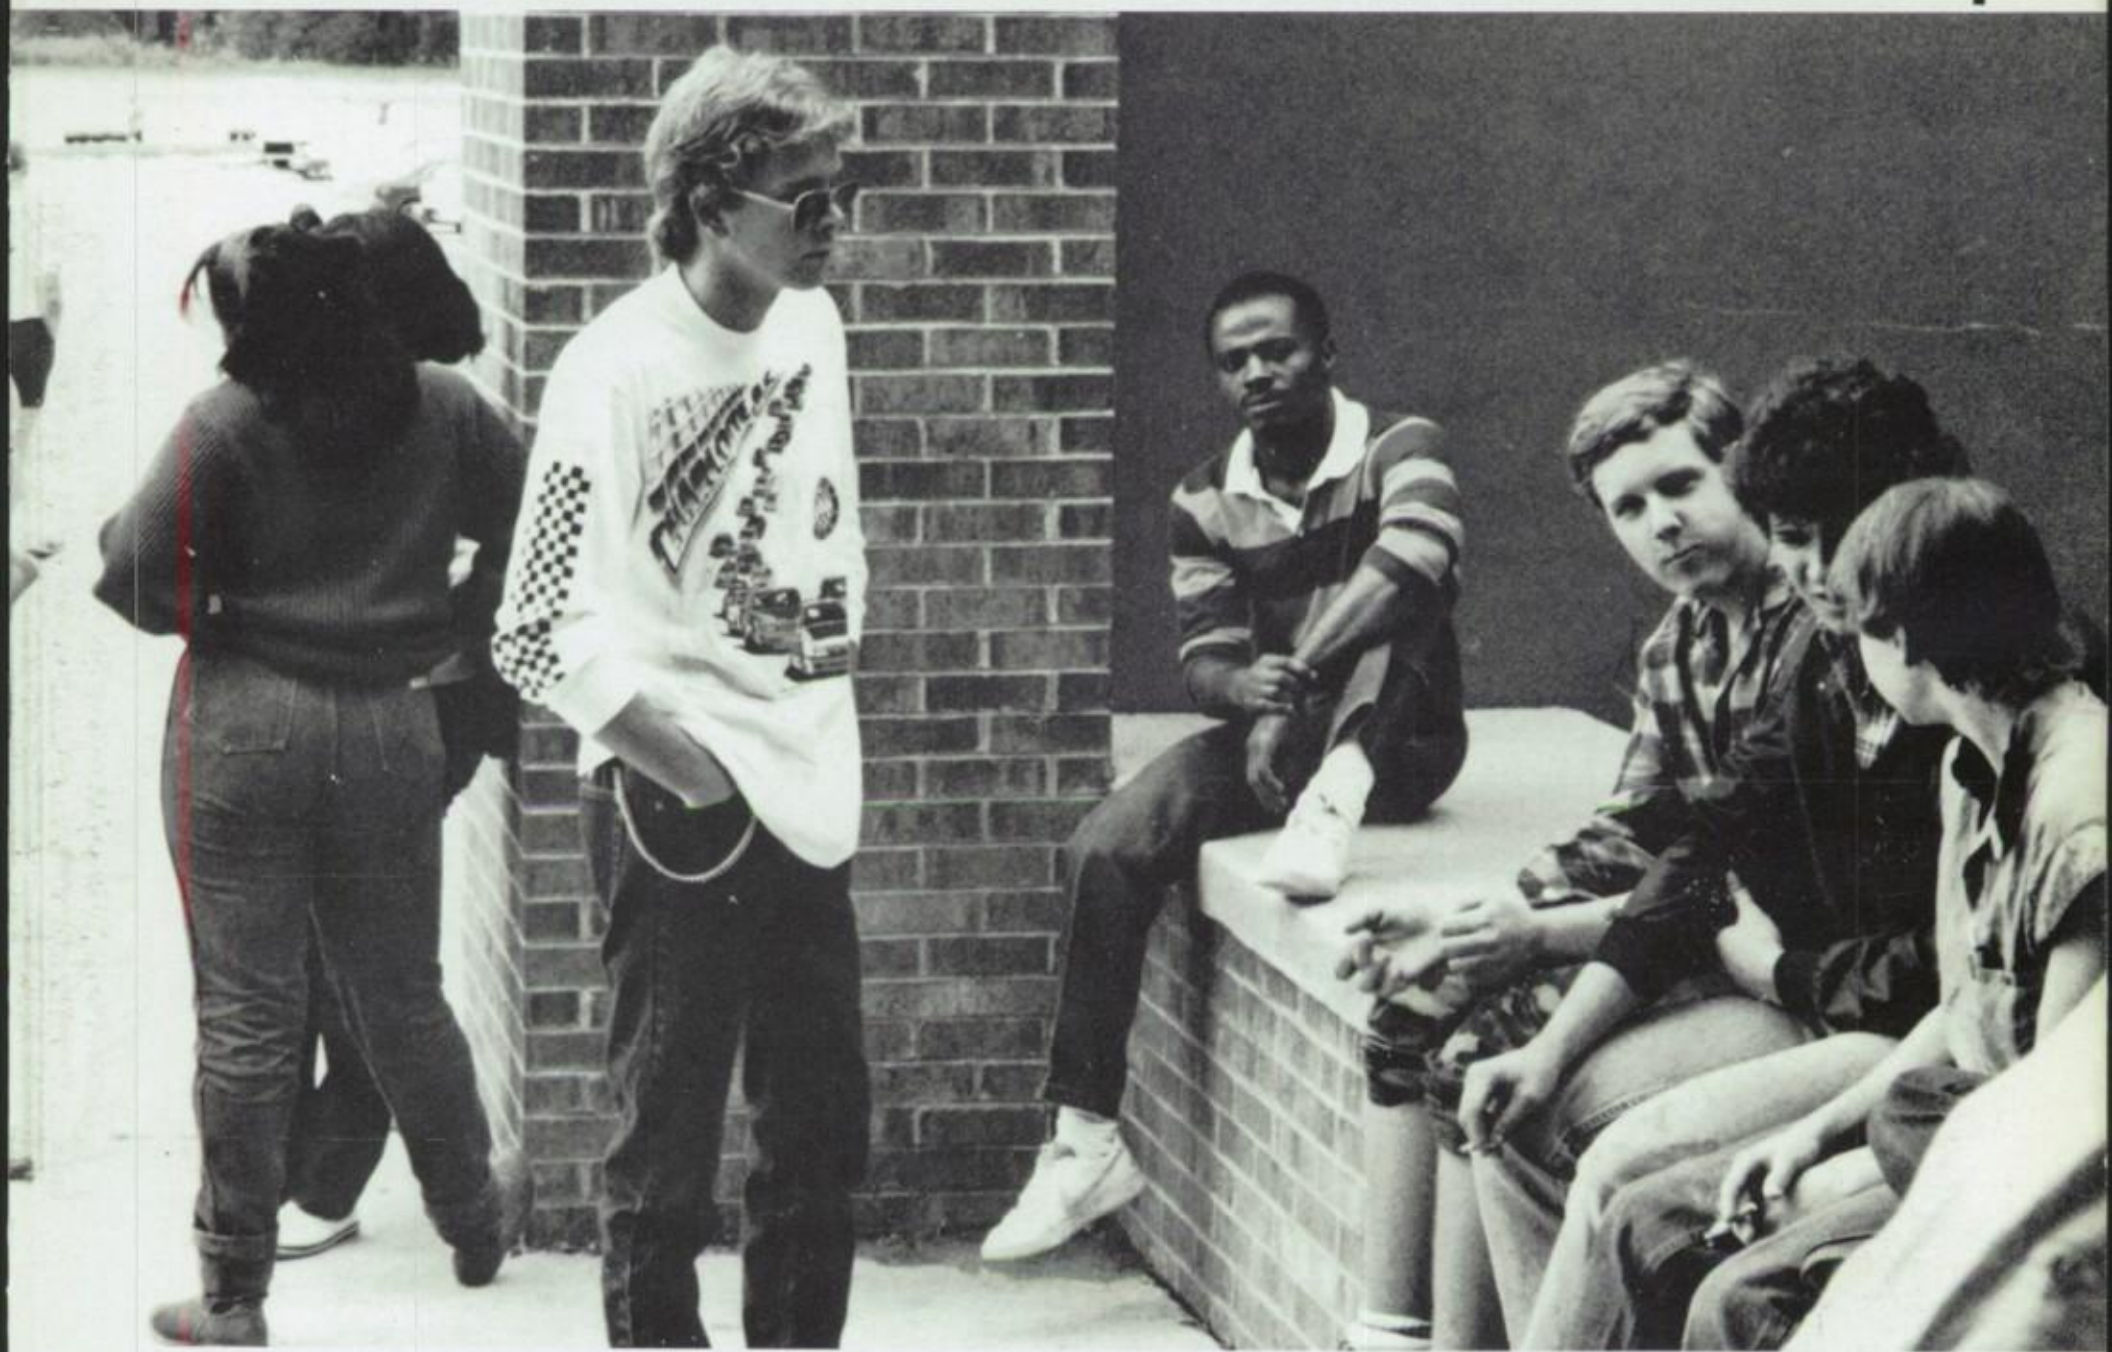

Students returned to Southwest in the fall of 1984 to find a new principal, a new assistant principal and several new teachers awaiting them. Dr. George Frazier had taken over for former principal Mr. Dean Dull, and Mr. Kenneth Wheat had replaced Mrs. Laverne Suggs as assistant principal. Not only did students have to become accustomed to their new teachers and the new school year, but they also had to adjust to the changes that had been made by the new administration. Students and teachers alike found the number of alterations mind boggling at first but soon settled into a somewhat normal routine. Needless to say, the modifications in school policy brought about by the changes in administration left their mark on everyone.

The changes made by the administration hit the sophomores, juniors, and seniors very hard; but the freshmen had different adjustments to make. They had to become settled in an entirely new environment. For the freshman class, however, those were adjustments that they were eager to make. In fact, they had been looking forward to making them for years. 1984 would leave them with lifelong memories of the year they finally reached high school.

Aside from all the changes that took place in 1984, there were many things that remained the same but that will long be remembered, although they may have seemed insignificant at the time. There were all the happy times spent with good friends, the many sporting events and other extracurricular activities in which to participate, and the hours spent trying to avoid being thrown out of the library for being too noisy. The Cowboys' school spirit and pride were as strong as ever, and there were still many of the same teachers who were as supportive as they had always been in the past.

All of these things, whether they had changed or remained the same, were things that left Lasting Impressions on everyone at Southwest.

The pageantry and grandeur of the Homecoming procession leaves a Lasting Impression on all who view it.

Student Life

As the 1984-1985 school year started off, students came with a new and restored sense of pride and Cowboy spirit. They were ecstatic at the news that Southwest would remain open, and showed their support to their school by attending pep rallies, games and other extra-curricular activities.

Many changes were made this year in our lifestyle here at Southwest. Dr. George Frazier was appointed our new principal and many new teachers filled the classrooms. Rules were changed, but abided. In spite of the unfamiliar faces and new rules, the students stuck together and looked beyond restrictions and made the year one filled with memories of good times and new friendships. This year will definitely leave a Lasting Impression in every Cowboy's heart.

Calling All Seniors!

There they were, "brand new seniors": enthusiastic about college applications, senior portraits, and planning their graduation. Thoughts of upcoming S.A.T.'s and the reality of the inescapable English and History term papers were omnipresent yet did not dampen their carefree and fun-filled spirits.

As the year progressed, "Senioritis" set in and by early February had hit with full force. Although seniors began to "slacken up" when it came to homework, they kept their school spirit by attending sports events and participating faithfully during pep rallies.

Trevor Duke stares in amazement at what is around the corner.

As the long-awaited graduation date approached, excited seniors began to buzz with news of college acceptances and plans to "live it up" at Myrtle Beach for a much-deserved week of sun and surf. But there was also a sullen mood that lurked in the background; graduating symbolized the finality of the Lasting Impressions of the class of 1985.

Suddenly, the year was over and as the class of 1985 looked back they remembered those significantly happy days. Congratulations, seniors! Those Lasting Impressions will be around for a long time.

Cowboy Spirit

Throughout the history of Southwest Guilford High School, Spirit Week has been a time for fun and excitement. The 1984 Spirit Week was no exception.

The week was started off by Dress-down Day on Monday. Students displayed tacky and ragged clothes in trying to gain points for their respective home-room classes. Dress-down Day provided many students with a chance to be comfortable without being looked down upon for their unusual attire. Tuesday was Dress-up Day at Southwest. Unlike the previous day, the scent of perfume and cologne was in the air. From t-shirts and pants to ties and skirts, the students handled the change very well. Wednesday was Hat, Bandana and Sunglasses Day. On this day, one saw every possible type of sunglasses, every possible color of bandanas, and every possible shape of hats.

By Thursday, the excitement of Homecoming was becoming very obvious. This day was Button Day of the Spirit Week. Students displayed not only Southwest buttons but also rock and country music buttons. Friday, everyone dressed in green and white and showed the traditional Cowboy spirit that Southwest has possessed for years.

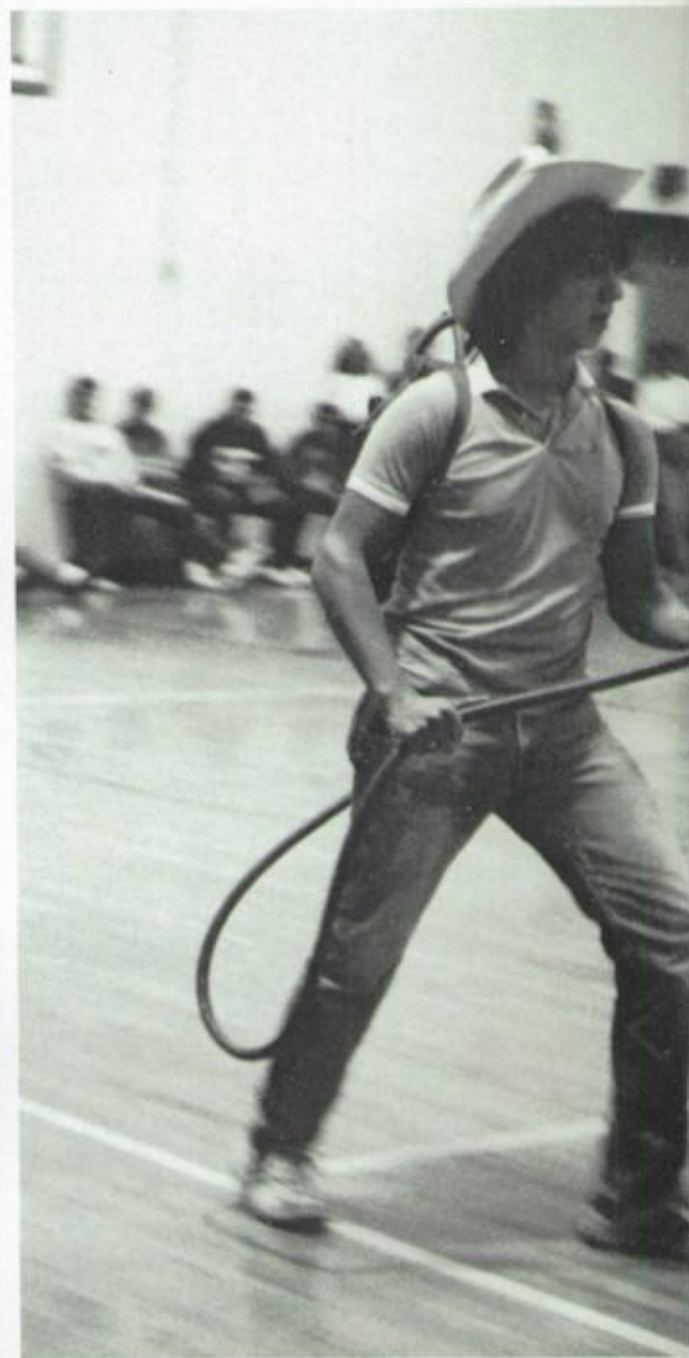

The final activity of this fun-filled week was the pep rally. The senior class put on a skit to top all other classes hands-down. The sophomore class came in second while the juniors came in third and the freshmen a lonely fourth.

Once again, Spirit Week proved its purpose. It built up the Cowboy spirit and pride all week until it finally exploded on Homecoming Night. The Cowboy consensus: there's no place like Southwest.

Tonight is What It Means to be Young

On a chilly October night, a large crowd gathered to celebrate the 1984 Southwest High School Homecoming ceremonies. A carefully decorated stadium and an abundance of cheering fans welcomed the attendants and their escorts. Excitement, anticipation, and curiosity filled the hearts of everyone as the clock counted down to halftime.

Each girl and her escort ascended upon the stage for the spectators to admire. When the final couple was introduced, the Master of Ceremonies announced Sheryl Camp as the new Maid of Honor. After a roar of applause, the crowd became silent, anxiously awaiting the announcement of the new Queen. Their curiosity was satisfied as Carrie Lackey was crowned Southwest's 1984-1985 Homecoming Queen by former Queen, Jamie Hamilton.

This night of laughter, memories, and old friends was made complete by the Cowboys' defeat of Denton by a score of 43-14. When the final attendant left the stage and the flash of the

On Friday night, October 12th, one of the biggest events at Southwest High School was preparing to take place. The Southwest annual Homecoming was underway. Five underclassmen and seven seniors were chosen to represent their respective classes, and they were the pride of all their classmates.

At half-time of the Southwest-Denton football game, these girls and their escorts were presented to the anxious crowd. The 1984 Homecoming was definitely a night which would remain in the hearts and minds of all who attended. And for those who participated, they then understood what it meant to be young.

Impressive Summer

The end of the school year was drawing near. More and more names appeared on the absentee list, and students grew restless.

When summer finally did arrive, radios were turned on to beach music and pools were opened. The class of 1984 traveled to Myrtle Beach to start off their vacation, while underclassmen stayed by the pool side. This marked a beginning of another summer filled with sunshine, beach trips and especially, the lack of those annoying alarm clocks!

This summer proved to be a time of relaxation, gatherings with friends, and playing in the water. A summer that will most definitely leave a lasting impression on many students for years to come.

Festive Fall

As the leaves fell from the trees and the air cooled, the excitement of the beginning of the 84-85 school year grew. The autumn days were full of work, fun, and personal triumph.

When fall arrived the Southwest Cowboy's football season got into full swing. With the success of the team the air was one of anticipation. The football games provided much of the enjoyment Southwest students had in the fall. Homecoming festivities, pep rallies, and celebration parties were just some of the activities students involved themselves in.

Autumn can be characterized by the changing of the leaves, the crystal blue skies, and the cool crisp air. The fall of 1984 was no exception. With the weather so beautiful, many outdoor activities took place. Sandlot basketball games were a common sight. Many students enjoyed themselves riding horses, raking leaves and just participating in general outdoor fun.

City Stage in Greensboro and Halloween were some of the highlights of fall. City Stage featured many local and national bands. The food, souvenirs and sunlight were irresistible for Southwest students. Many cowboys enjoyed the excitement and atmosphere of City Stage.

Halloween, as always, provided an unforgettable night for many students. Most cowboys looked for terror by going to a haunted house put on by High Point College. Halloween, being on a school night, provided a needed change for many Southwest students.

Once again, fall was a wonderful beginning for a Southwest school year. It provided all the fun, excitement, and work that Southwest students could handle.

Tis the Season

As grey clouds moved in and temperatures dropped, students began to hope for a white Christmas. And then there was a complete turn around. Temperatures got up to 74 degrees during Christmas holidays and Cowboys found themselves sporting fall clothes instead of their new winter wardrobes.

The new year brought in colder weather and we received our first snow on January 21st. Many more snow storms followed the first, enabling students to miss school days repeatedly for the next four weeks. Students did not seem to mind when school was delayed for one or two hours or when they had to eat lunch early in order to be dismissed from school in the morning due to falling snow.

Although there was a chill in the air and a blanket of snow on the ground, the spirit of Southwest students was not dampened! Cowboys flocked to the ski slopes, braving possible injury and steep slopes.

Along with the fun times, the snow brought minor hardships for students. Many roads and bridges became dangerous and students found themselves scraping ice covered windshields in the mornings.

Through the freezing weather and the constant colds, that everlasting spirit managed to keep students warm during the cold months.

Impressive Cowboy Nights

As the day turned to dusk, many Cowboys had thoughts of friends and dates on their minds rather than school and homework. Although keeping up with school was important, Southwest students knew that a consistent nightlife also had certain priorities.

Everyone argued with their parents over curfews and what they were going to do for the night — sometimes winning and sometimes not. But once they were finally on their way, you could find students relaxing at a party, viewing a popular movie, or just walking around the mall.

As students hurried to get home before their curfews, they were filled with an excitement that comes from having a good time with friends or that "special someone".

When the Week Ends!

When Friday afternoon finally arrived, the pressures of school were soon forgotten. Textbooks and term papers were replaced by parties and special friends. Weekends were a time for socializing, dating, or just relaxing at home.

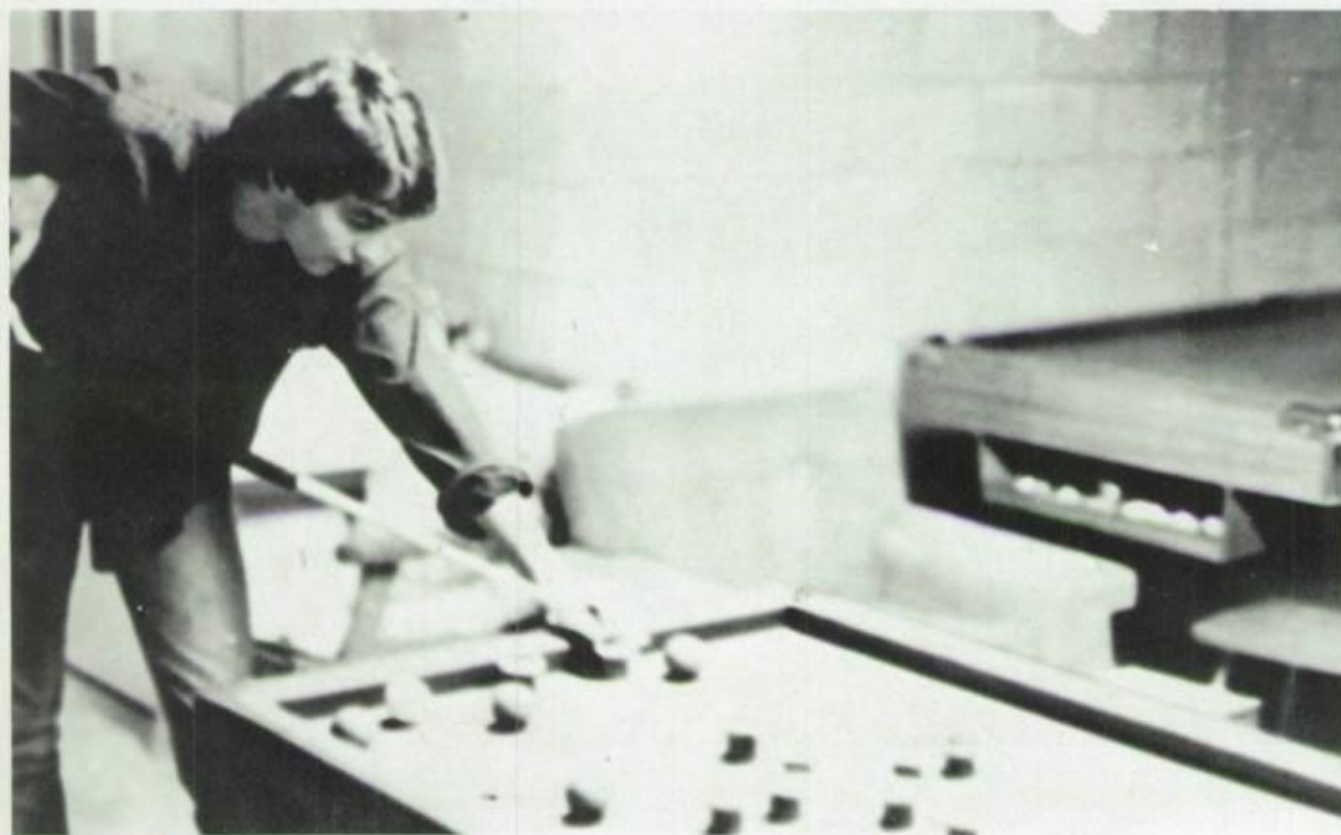

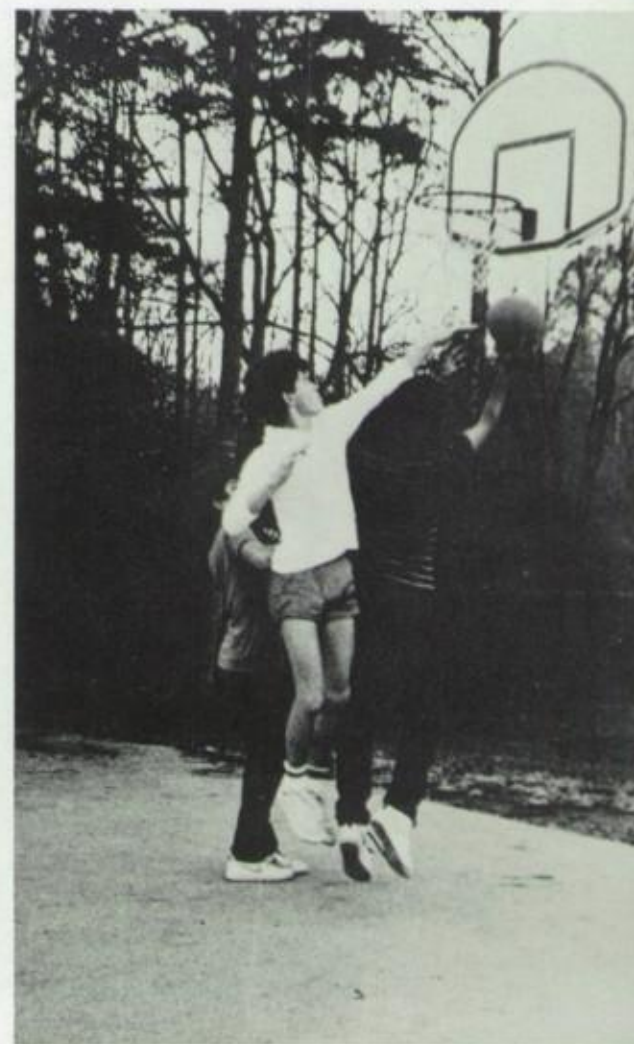

Our weekends never seemed long enough, and we could always find something to occupy every minute of our "vacation". A date with someone special was often a popular choice. Students enjoyed going to parties, athletic events, or just riding around in search of excitement. Some students spent their time — and money — at the mall looking for the latest fashions. Others pursued such hobbies as horseback-riding, dancing, or skiing.

Whatever we spent our time doing, the weekends were welcomed rewards for a previous week of hard work.

These students have found that a warm Saturday afternoon is the perfect time for playing basketball.

There are many important aspects of high school life. One of the most significant, of course, is one's friends.

Throughout high school, we together as friends, have shared some of the best times of our lives. We've joked and laughed, and we've told our deepest secrets and desires. We've fought, too. But, when the arguments were over, we became even closer.

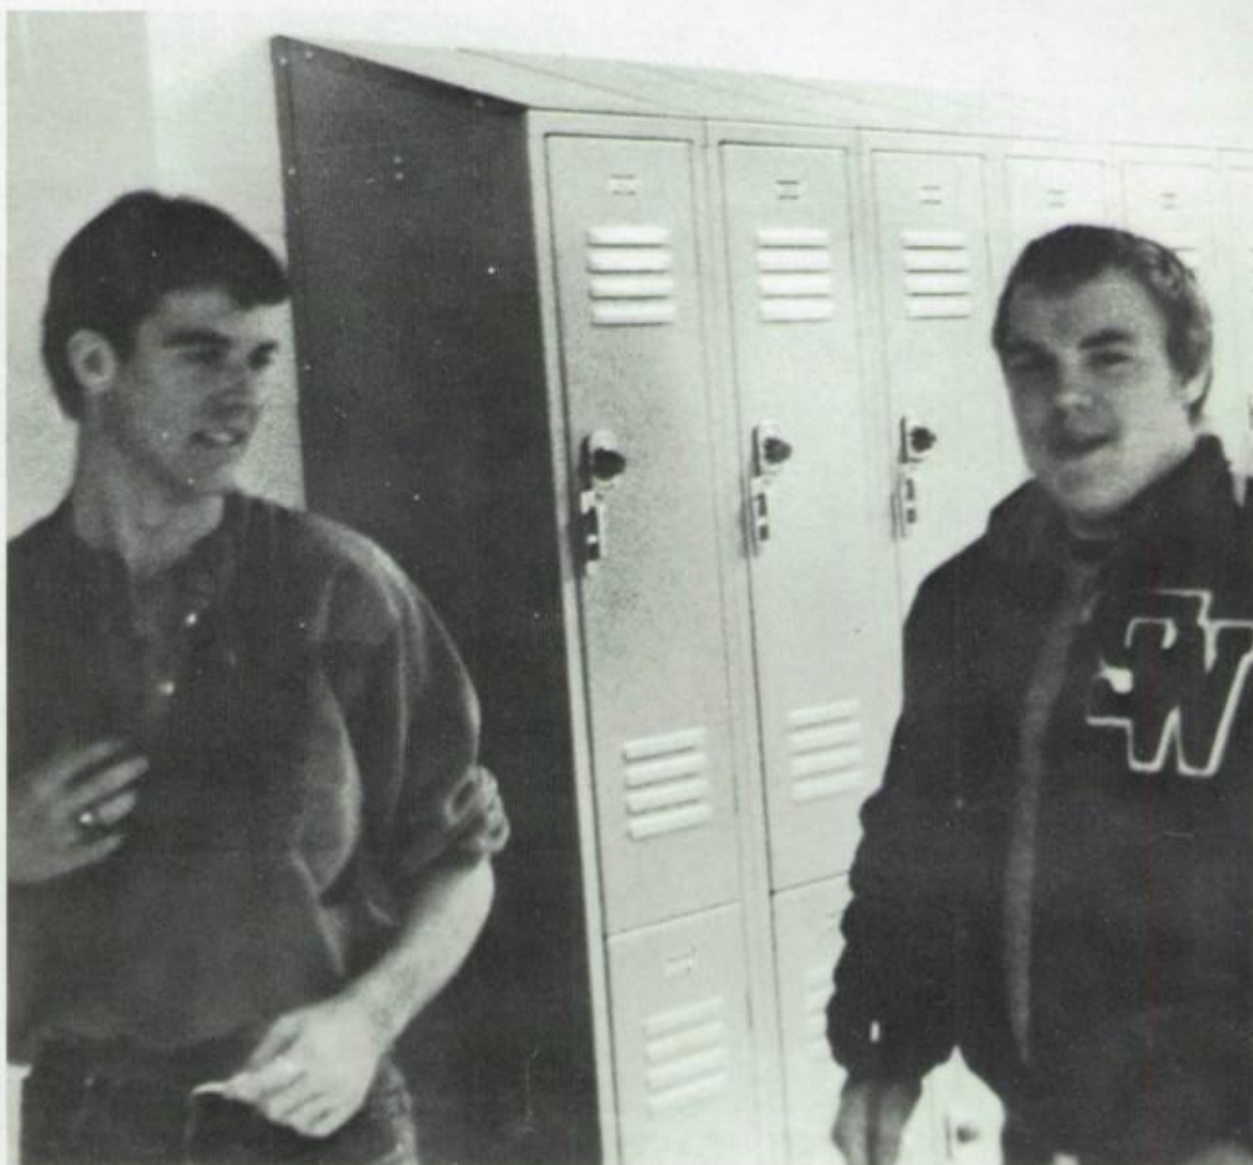

Many of us strove for the same goals: class honors, good grades, office positions, and boy or girl-friends. We did realize that we would not stay together forever, so we survived and soon were able to forgive and forget. Miraculously, we aided each other through some of the most difficult years of our lives. Strengthened by our friends, we were inevitably successful. The great times made possible will somehow stay etched in all of our memories forever, and they will never be forgotten.

A New Look

This year, Southwest saw many changes to its administration. We acquired a new principal, assistant principal, secretary, and guidance counselor. Together, they all worked to maintain a system of discipline and order throughout the school.

Dr. George W. Frazier, formerly of Southeast Junior High School, became our new principal. With the help of assistant principal, Mr. Kenneth Wheat, previously of Jamestown Middle School, Dr. Frazier made sure that every student received the best education possible. Their great concern for the students was shown by their constant effort to make Southwest a school of opportunity and respect.

Mrs. Culkin, the new secretary, was prepared to meet the responsibilities of a hectic schedule. Along with Mrs. Hartley and Mrs. Fusselman, she made sure that our school operated in an organized, efficient manner.

Also new to Southwest was Mrs. Payne, the guidance counselor. Whether she was helping a student with a schedule conflict or a college decision, she always managed to take the time to be friendly and encouraging.

Mrs. Culkin performs one of the many duties required of being a secretary.

Being principal, Dr. Frazier is often faced with a lot of paperwork.

As assistant principal, Mr. Wheat has several important tasks to complete.

Mrs. Payne helps senior Rich Toomey with a college decision.

Thankful that the end of the day has finally arrived, Dr. Frazier supervises the afternoon stampede.

The Year of 1984

The year of 1984 can be characterized as one of big events. The president was elected, the Olympics were held in Los Angeles, and Michael Jackson's "Victory Tour" were just some of the highlights of 1984.

The year had two deaths of world leaders that played a very important role in the year's international news. Soviet leader Yuri Andropov died and Indian leader Indira Ghandi was brutally assassinated without apparent reason.

There were many scientific and medical break-throughs that hit front pages all over the country. "Baby Fae" was a major headline. "Baby Fae", on the brink of death, was saved by having her heart replaced with a baboon's heart. Also, in the field of hearts, William Schroeder, a fifty-two-year-old man with heart troubles was fitted with an artificial heart. Several months later, he was on his way home. It was a promise of hope and optimism among the medical community.

President Reagan was re-elected in the forty-nine-state-sweep over Walter Mondale. But the real story involved the fact that Walter Mondale picked the first woman vice-presidential candidate in the history of the United States as his running mate. Geraldine Ferraro lost the campaign but she still secured her place in the history books as a major step forward into the age where women are completely equal.

The year of 1984 was also one in which the XXIII Olympiad took place. Mary Lou Retton, a contestant in the women's gymnastics, and Carl Lewis, a male sprinter, stole the hearts of Americans all over the country. The United States represented itself well in Los Angeles, not only with their athletes but also with hospitality to the other countries.

The year of 1984, though marred with its tragedies, was one of hope and optimism. Through all the major and minor events of 1984, the year proved to be a perfect stepping stone to a hopeful 1985 and future.

After Graduation

For most high school students, what to do after high school was a decision that took a lot of time, concentrated effort, and careful planning. Many different paths were available for our high school graduates to follow. One may have chosen to end his or her education and go to work, possibly to start a career. On the other hand, one may also have chosen to further his or her education and attend college.

Pinpointing the appropriate college did not come easily. It was hard work and many steps were involved. Some students had better luck with their college-searching than others.

After sending in applications, transcripts, and/or essays, all that one could do was wait . . . and hope. The agony of wondering whether or not the grades that one had strived to achieve were able to compete against the thousands of others who were also applying was very great.

Not only did the college admissions departments look at one's grades, but also SAT scores as well. These scores played an important role in whether or not you were accepted to the college of your choice. However, a decision of acceptance was not based on these scores alone, as other factors were considered.

Extra-curricular activities played an important part, also. Many colleges could tell a lot about a student, his or her study habits, his or her physical and mental drive, and his or her personality by the organizations and activities one participated in.

What next? Students had done best with their grades, taken the SAT, and filled out their applications listing extra activities. All that was left to do now was watch the mailbox everyday for that long-awaited reply. Chances are students would not be accepted to every college he or she applied to, but more than likely would be accepted to at least one within his or her area of interest.

When the letter finally arrived one was overwhelmed with either a feeling of relief or slight disappointment. College was an important part in the lives of those who chose to pursue it to the fullest degree. It was vital to make a good decision and start in the right direction after one's high school career was completed and done.

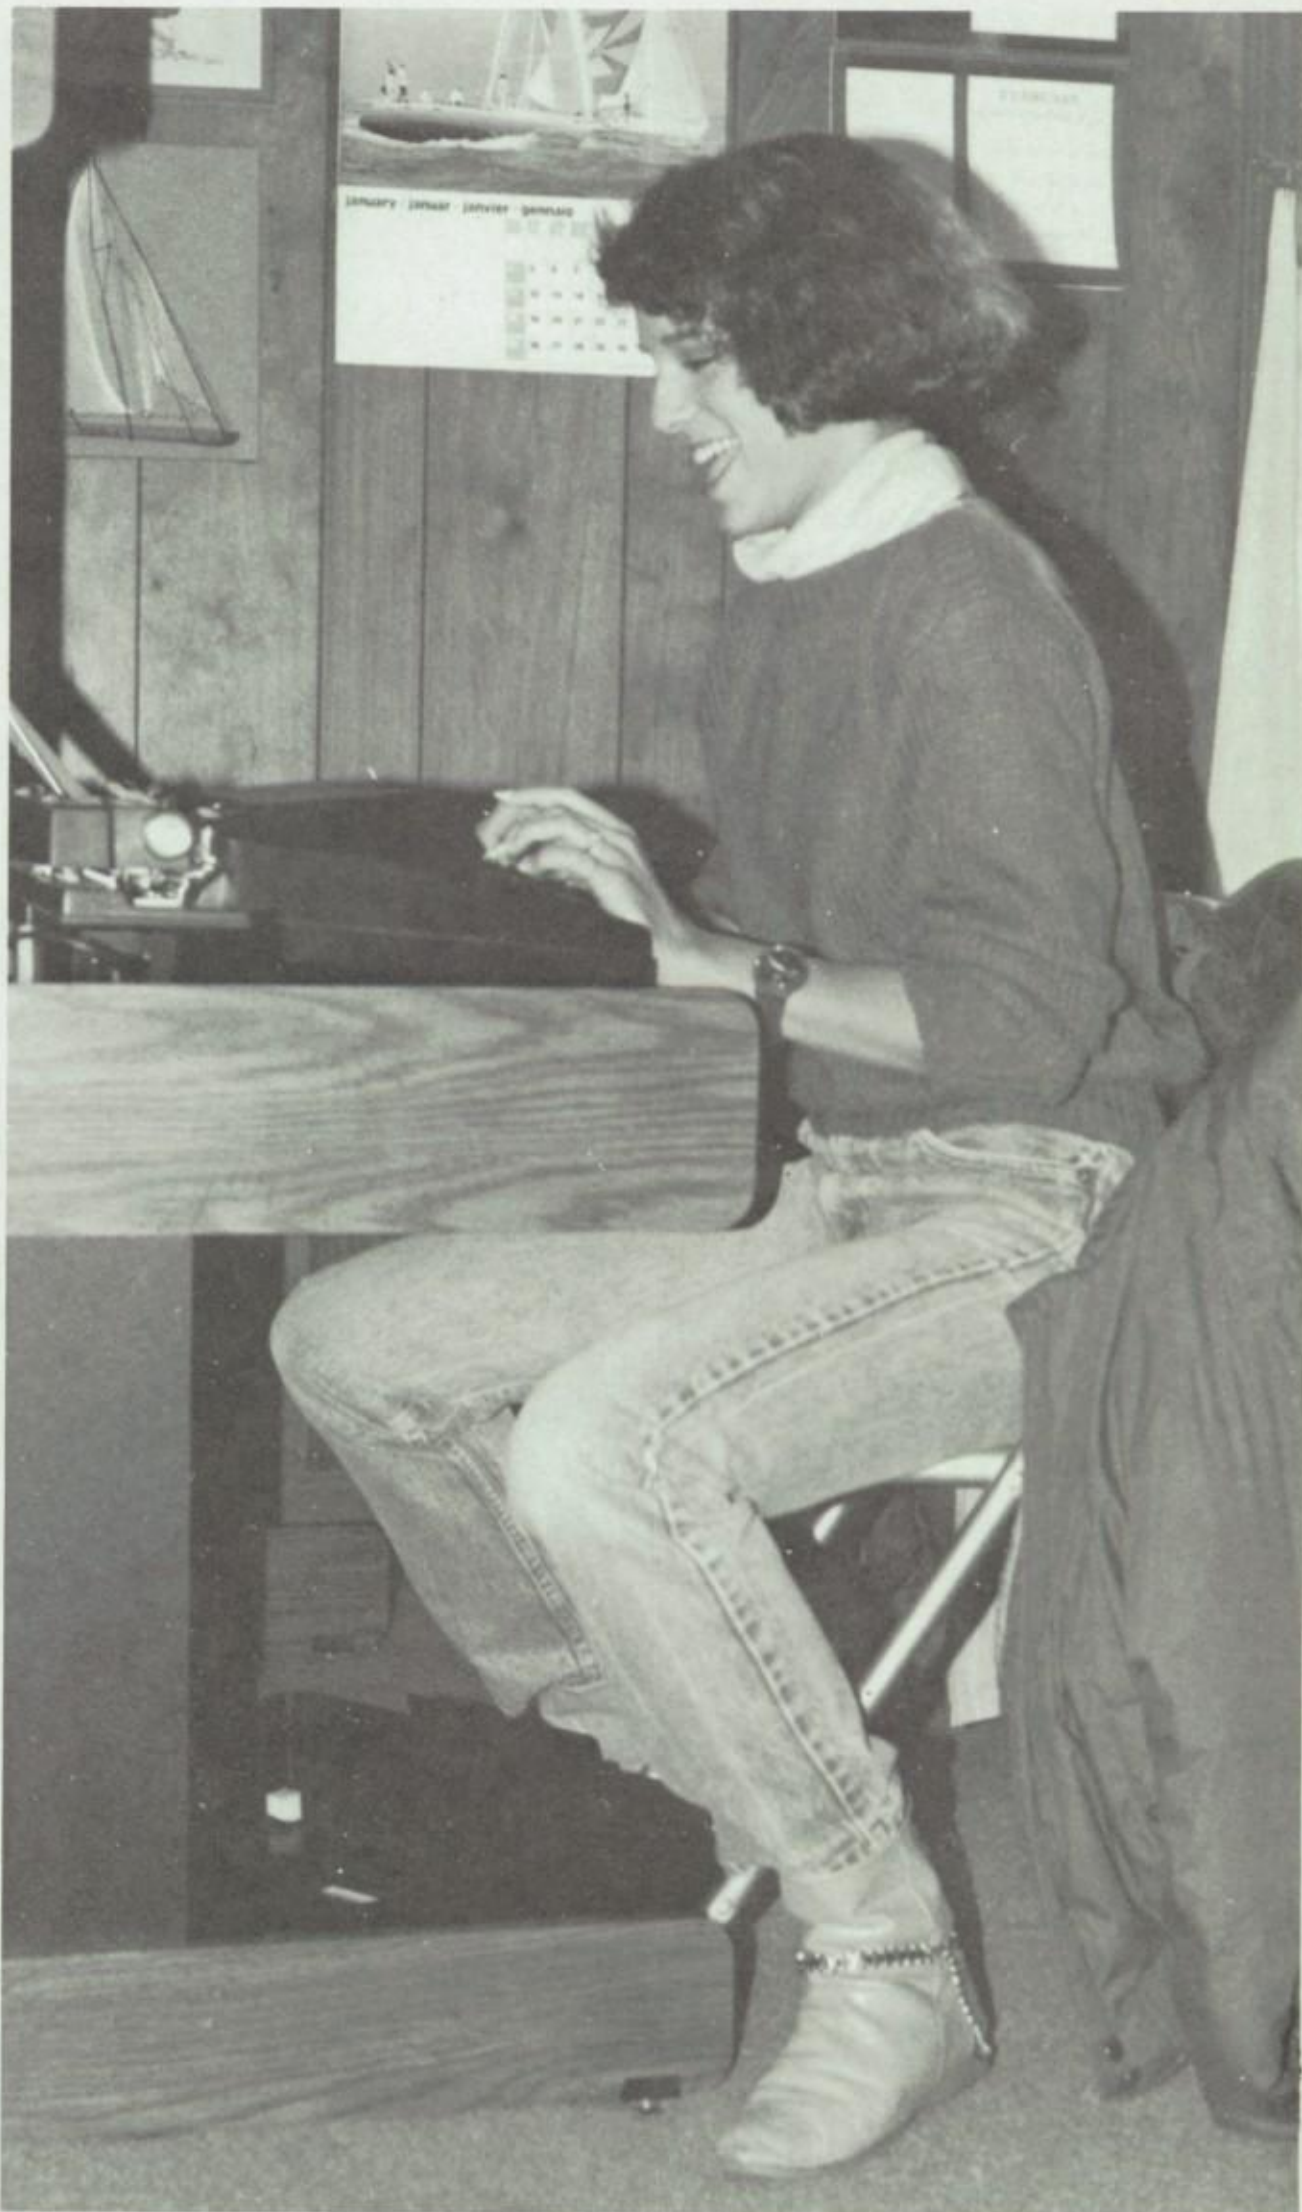

The campus at UNC-Chapel Hill will soon be a familiar sight to many of our graduating seniors.

Fashions Make Lasting Impressions

As school started this year, we were reminded that fashion still seemed to be very important. The only difference in this year's fashion was that instead of everyone wanting to be alike, everyone was trying to be as different as possible.

An array of festive colors filled the halls and streets. Fluorescent colors seemed to be a big hit, every where one turned, hot pinks, bright blues and dazzling yellows were to be found.

A most definite accent was put on unusual accessories. Wooden bead necklaces, "very" dangling earrings and many different styles of belts seemed to be the most desired accessories. Not to mention the odd bracelets and anklets made of rhinestone, black leather or plastic.

Shoes were more noticed this year than ever. Shoes of all colors to match an outfit were found. They were found in high heels, pumps, lowheels, lace up shoes with no top. If you really wanted an unusual shoe plus comfort, you could always go to the "new" shoe called, Jellies. These shoes were made out of plastic and seemed to be quite desirable. Even high top sneakers were found in an array of colors.

Outerwear was also an unusual part of one's wardrobe. Everywhere you turned a jean jacket caught your eye. Hats also seemed to be quite in fashion. But many people didn't want to cover their new hairstyles. The styles of hair were all different. Even though the hair style this year was short, it was by far not plain. Some had two toned hair with long bangs and short in the back. Others stuck with the blunt, sophisticated style. Still others stuck to what suited them best.

All in all the fashions this year were exciting and different. And as always Southwest was in "style". Everyone was trying to look their best, trying to make a lasting impression.

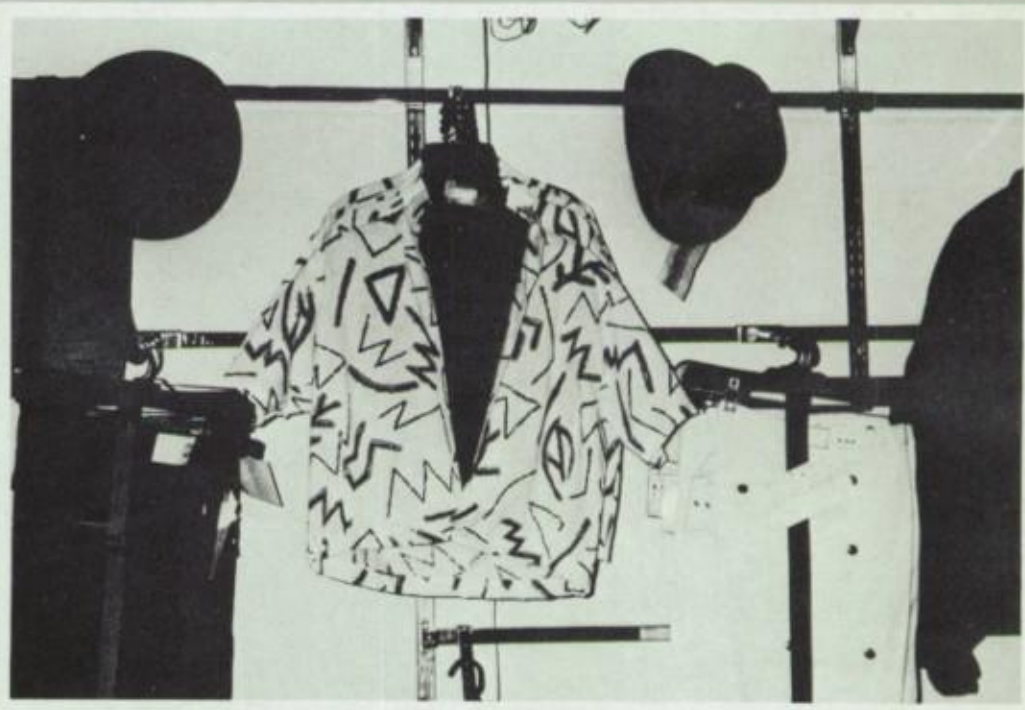

Lisa Burgio and Dana Johnson enjoy keeping up with the wearing the latest fashions.

Rise and Shine

In high school, almost everyone had an inveterate routine which they would religiously follow before going out. Whether it be a date, a friendly night-out with the "gang", or just preparing to go to school, everyone was eager to look their best. Many students could have easily spent several hours getting ready for that "special event", but most did not have the extra time necessary. Often sleep and chores had to come first. Despite these obstacles, however, they always managed to put their best face forward!

Many steps were involved in this time-consuming project. For many, a dash to the shower was always first. This eye-opener seemed to get everyone moving. Other events to follow consisted of brush-ing one's teeth, putting in one's contact lenses, etc.

Our girls had it a bit tougher than our guys. They had to decide how to wear their hair — up or down. They had to decide how to wear their cosmetics — which colors best-suited their mood. And most importantly what were they going to wear? The questions of what to wear proved to be the hardest decision of all. Each girl had her own unique style and was determined to present it well.

Guys, on the other hand, did not seem as concerned with their attire as were the ladies. Most chose a comfortable pair of jeans accompanied by sweaters or button-downs. However, no matter what they chose, our Southwest guys always came out looking great.

Now, all were ready to go. Final touches were made as a quick glance in the mirror ensured the success; only then did the students of Southwest know that their time-consuming efforts had been worthwhile.

Heart to Heart

Valentine's Day at Southwest would not be the same without the presentation of the Valentine's Basketball Court. Elected by their own classmates, these nine girls possessed qualities of beauty, charm, and personality. The Court consisted of two representatives from the freshman, sophomore, and junior classes; the senior class chose three representatives.

Sponsored by the Student Council, the ceremony took place during halftime of the Boys' Varsity game on February 15. As each nervous attendant and her escort was introduced, the crowd anxiously awaited the crowning of our 1985 Valentine's Court Queen. Their curiosity was satisfied as team captains Billy Freeman and Rich Toomey crowned Vanessa Caudle as the new Queen.

This special evening of flowers, candy, and sweethearts was successfully completed by the Cowboys' defeat of Ledford by a score of 62-54.

Academics & Organizations

Each class of students ranging from freshmen to seniors, were different in many aspects, but one universal goal of all students was the desire to become academically successful. In order for students to complete a course meant a lot of hard work in and out of the classroom. Not only did it require the attentiveness and participation of each student in class, but it was also imperative for the student to spend hours of studying out of school. Many students found themselves in the library frantically in search of resource materials for their term paper, while some students gave up social events in order to stay at home desperately trying to understand what they considered a hopeless assignment. Even though it appeared that all of their free time was being devoted to school work, students felt it was well-worth the hard work and effort when they received desired grades and achieved their goals.

Extra-curricular activities also made up an important part of students lives. There were a number of organizations representing various classes and groups. These clubs participated in an assortment of activities and represented the school at area meetings and conventions. Students spent many hours involved in club events, but all seemed to greatly appreciate the learning opportunity provided, the new friends made, and the help and dedication of the club advisors.

All of the classes and organizations that students were involved in required a tremendous degree of dedication and lots of work, but every individual enjoyed being in the company of friends and classmates who were interested in some of the same topics and shared similar ideas. Throughout the year, with the help of teachers and friends, both classes and organizations provided learning opportunities and left Lasting Impressions on every student.

Senior Jim Mackey takes advantage of his study hall period as he works to complete one of his many assignments.

Some of these students seem to be concentrating on something other than their geometry work.

Freshman Amber Coltrane doesn't appear to be worried about completing her typing contract in Mrs. Coulthard's class.

Rich Toomey exhibits the art of relaxation as he takes a break from work on his upcoming yearbook deadline.

Back to Basics

This year two of the most difficult subjects Southwest students took were English and history. Students ranging from grades nine through twelve found both of these subjects to be challenging.

English at Southwest provided students with an outlet to creative development. Throughout the year, students read books, essays and began to appreciate and learn the importance of the art of literature and grammar. Students studied a variety of topics involving novels, poetry, short stories, vocabulary, and were introduced to various authors such as Shakespeare. They learned how to express their ideas and thoughts on paper, and developed a better form of writing. A lot of hard work and concern was given to the students by our English teachers Mrs. Laura Boyles, Miss Jeanne Grana, Mrs. Joyce Morton, Mrs. Betsy Reagan, Mrs. Betty Sledge, Miss Ruthann Tormey, and Mrs. Rebecca Yaun.

During the year one could find Southwest students taking a variety of history courses. Students learned more about their own country and its history and were exposed to information on new cultures and civilization. They discovered the importance of government in a society and were made aware of numerous conflicts and wars. Some were plunged into the unknown world of psychology, while others entered into already discovered social areas. They were made aware of our societal atmosphere by our history teachers Miss Annette Greene who taught world history, U. S history, and European history, Mrs. Arlene Goldie who taught ELPSA-economic, legal, political systems in action, and U. S history, Mr. Joe Myers who taught world geography and U. S. history, Mr. Larry Ratliff who taught economics, sociology, and ELPSA, and Mr. John Tripp who taught psychology and ELPSA.

Whether they took an English or a history course students were made aware of new ideas and facts. Even though the classes proved to be difficult and required hard work they helped students to understand the importance of learning and appreciating new facets of the arts of English and historical significance.

Jon Stroud seems to disagree with Mr. Ratliff about a fact discussed in his freshman history class.

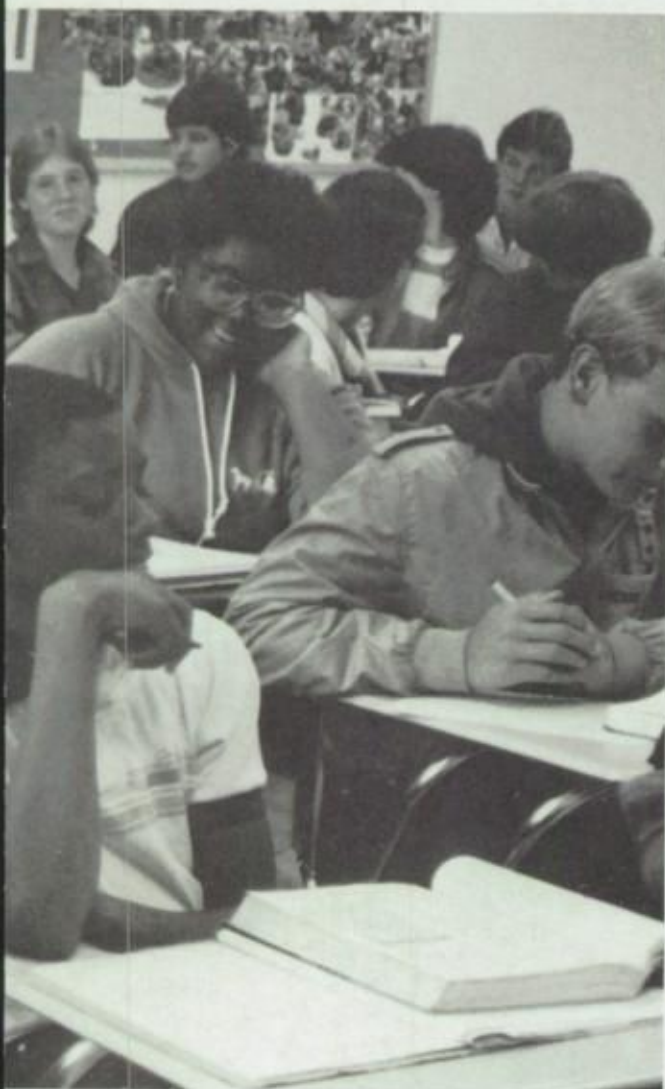

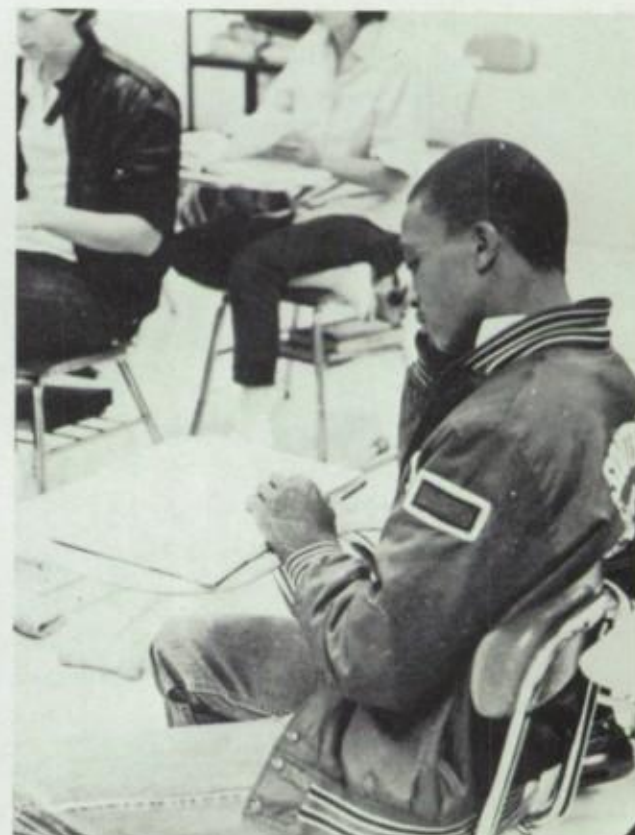

These freshmen discover that a lot of studying and hard work is involved in successfully completing their ELPSA history course.

These students find that Miss Tormey's English class can be more of a challenge than they had anticipated.

Senior Bernard Briley is intent on finishing his literature homework before the period ends.

Junior Scott Smith seems to be annoyed by the interruption from his English assignment while Debbie Smith is apparently amused.

While waiting for the bell to ring, Rhonda Carter and David Campbell ponder over the notes they took in European history.

It All adds Up

Students taking science and math classes this year returned to a variety of teachers — old and new. There were many adjustments for the students to make because both departments had added new teachers with different personalities and different methods of teaching from those previously serving the positions.

There were three new additions to the math department this year. Mrs. Karol S. Fowlkes taught Algebra I, Algebra II, and calculus. Mr. Lloyd Stover taught Algebra II, geometry, and fundamental math. And, Mr. Richard Welch taught advanced math and refresher math.

The other math teachers were Ms. Lorenda Tiscornia and Mrs. Hazel Bowen. Ms. Tiscornia taught consumer math. Mrs. Bowen, the veteran among the math teachers, instructed Algebra I and II and geometry classes. Mrs. Bowen was also the head of the math department this year.

Many types of sciences were taught during the course of the school year itself from general physical science to honors advanced biology. Mrs. Joanne Morgan, was the head of the science department and she taught general physical science, biology, and honors advanced biology. Ms. Lorenda Tiscornia instructed a general biology class, and Mr. Roy Boyles taught biology and environmental science. Mrs. Sheree Crane taught physics, biology, and physical sciences, and Ms. Moni Bates, the newcomer amongst the teachers in the science department, taught chemistry and physical science.

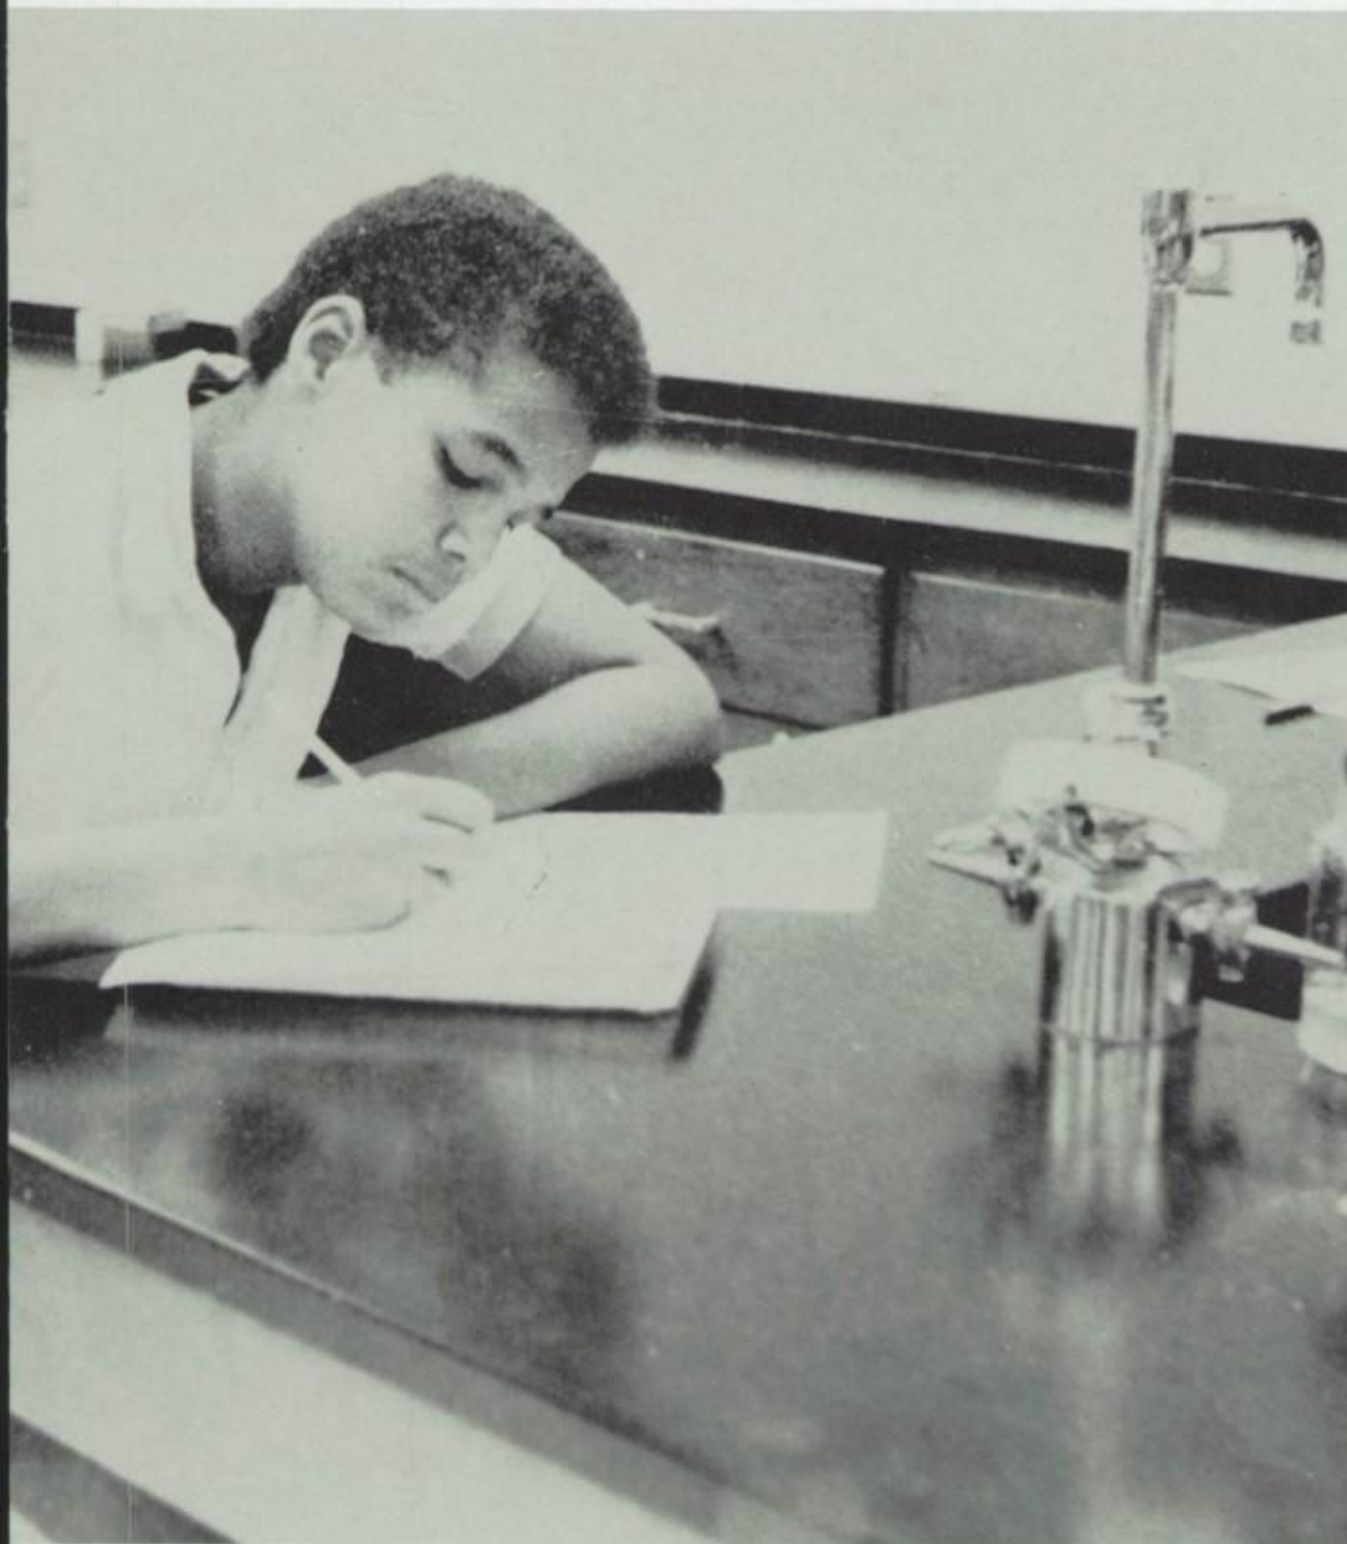

The students were not limited to the classrooms and labs alone, as many also participated in math - and science-related activities outside of school. For example, in math we had people take part in Algebra I and Geometry contests. In science, we participated in Scholarship competitions and took part in the Guilford County Science Fair.

Some of the students in Mrs. Morgan's physical science class take time out to pose for the camera.

Rosanne Phillips copies down a problem in Mr. Stover's geometry class.

James Oglesby is busy working on his chemistry lab, hoping to impress Ms. Bates.

These seniors in Mrs. Fowlkes' calculus class take a break from their studies to discuss the latest gossip.

These students in Ms. Bates' physical science class look really "thrilled" to be taking notes.

Algebra I is proving to be more difficult than these students expected.

Business Today

Many students at Southwest have become interested in business courses. The business field has many opportunities for everyone, and the business world is one that is constantly growing and changing. The students came to learn about the many diverse forms of business management.

Southwest offers Typing I and II, Accounting I and II, Data Processing, and Office Occupations I and II. Typing I is designed to develop the ability to operate the typewriter correctly and efficiently using the "touch method." Students learn to arrange in type-written form, problem copy, business and personal letters, reports and outlines. Typing II students developed and operated their own Word Processing Center. They have learned to use the word processing software. In accounting, students learned the correct procedure to prepare and maintain financial records in business. These financial records are used extensively by all businesses to make important financial decisions. Data Processing provides students with fundamentals of input/output media, flowcharting, and basic understanding of current computer programming languages. Office Occupations I students mastered basic office tasks such as processing mail, filing, and reception duties. Office Occupations II students attended school in the morning and reported to their training stations in the afternoon. Students were given the opportunity to help select individual units of study which show relations to their career objectives.

Mrs. Betty Coulthard, Mrs. Gerry Harris and Mrs. Carol Rinehardt have worked together to give their students the understanding and education which they will need for their future career in business-related areas.

Richard Turman tries out a new program in Data Processing.

Vanessa Caudle spends her time doing secretarial work in Office Occupations II.

Leslie Kester and Katana Houghtaling show their abilities in Typing I.

Valarie Luttrell and Mark Lowe strive to achieve their speed in typing.

After writing her program, Susan Jarrett tries it out on the terminal.

Mrs. Gerry Harris expresses to her Data Processing class the importance of computers.

Angela Twisdale concentrates on finishing her work for Office Occupations.

Behind the Scenes

Without the assistance of the office helpers it would have been difficult to keep a well-organized office. Although this class did not count as a credit, the students worked and learned many new things which will help them in the future business world. The Office Assistants were under the watchful eye of Mrs. Eleanor Culkin, Mrs. Sueann Fusselman, and Mrs. Mary Lee Hartley.

Just like a dictionary, the library was a place to find many answers. The library became a place for students to do research papers or just a place to think. With the help of our librarians, Mrs. Pamela Hill and Mrs. Patricia Brown, along with the various library assistants, valuable help was provided for the students. They helped students find books, kept the shelves arranged neatly, worked with the card catalog and made super suggestions. Even though these people were extremely busy, they found time to give advice when it was needed.

Future Homemakers

Learning about such things as Child Developments, Housing, Fashion, Cooking, and Sewing were several of the activities performed by the Home Economics classes.

The Introductory Home Economics class made jackets in October and learned about the sewing machine and usefulness. A class of Child Development was taught concerning how to deal with children, by taking care of them from infancy to adolescence, and keeping them happy.

The Advanced Home Economics class was involved in such activities as baking cakes and cheeserolls for Christmas to sell to the faculty. They also designed and sewed garments that were demonstrated in a fashion show presented for the PTSA.

The Home Economics students gained an understanding of the responsibilities of modern day homemaking skills. Hard work as well as fun helped to contribute to this important facet of education.

Ms. Williams gives a student a few tips on how to thread a needle.

Pam Richardson is distracted from her tedious work in Home Economics.

Tammy Birch seems to find Home Economics class the perfect time for doing unfinished homework.

Lee Ann Loggins is too devoted to her sewing to even stop for a moment to smile.

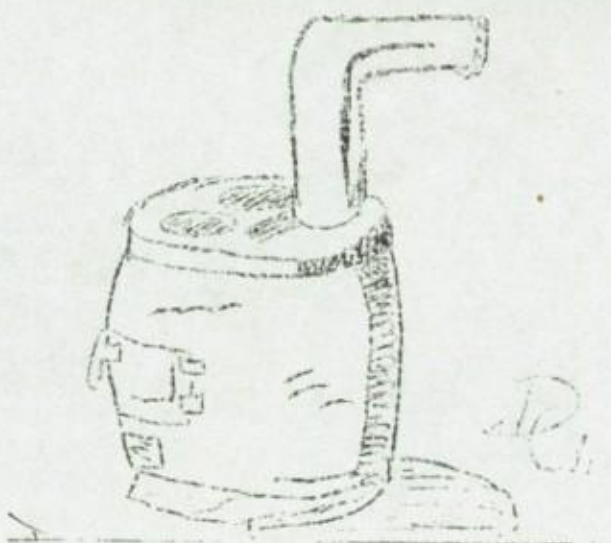

Beth Morris seems to find Intr. Home Ec. a real joy as shes snips away at a pattern.

These students participated in a "Mock Wedding" given by the Adv. Home Ec. class.

These students listen intently as Ms. Williams gives them a few facts on managing a home.

Preparing for the Future

This year ICT, Industrial Cooperative Training, was offered for juniors and seniors. In ICT I students learned the basic skills needed for becoming a successful employee. They were instructed in the classroom and were observed at their places of employment by Mr. Thomas Weikel. Students were required to take one hour of classroom instruction and a minimum of three hours per day of on-the-job training.

ICT II was an advanced class in which the student continued on his job at a selected training station while continuing under the supervision of the teacher and employer. He learned information that will be of help to him in becoming a more productive and informed citizen. Being enrolled in an ICT class meant leaving school early and earning money, but the student also gained valuable experience concerning job interviews and filling out tax forms. ICT student Nikki Halipillas said, "Being enrolled in ICT has given me information, such as filling out tax forms, that I would have learned no other way."

Those students enrolled in Vocational Occupations were instructed by Larry Pierce. Vocational Occupations promoted personal growth through participation in worth-while educational, recreational, and social activities. Students learned how to receive a job, what their attitude concerning the job should be, how to keep the job, and the different types of job markets. Taking this course created learning opportunities in leadership, civic consciousness, and vocational understanding. Vocational Occupations student Tammy Hairston said, "Vocational Occupations has taught me about different jobs and job situations that I will be facing in the future."

Students enrolled in both ICT and Vocational Occupations had an opportunity to strengthen skills which they will use in the future.

These students are learning the importance of becoming more productive citizens.

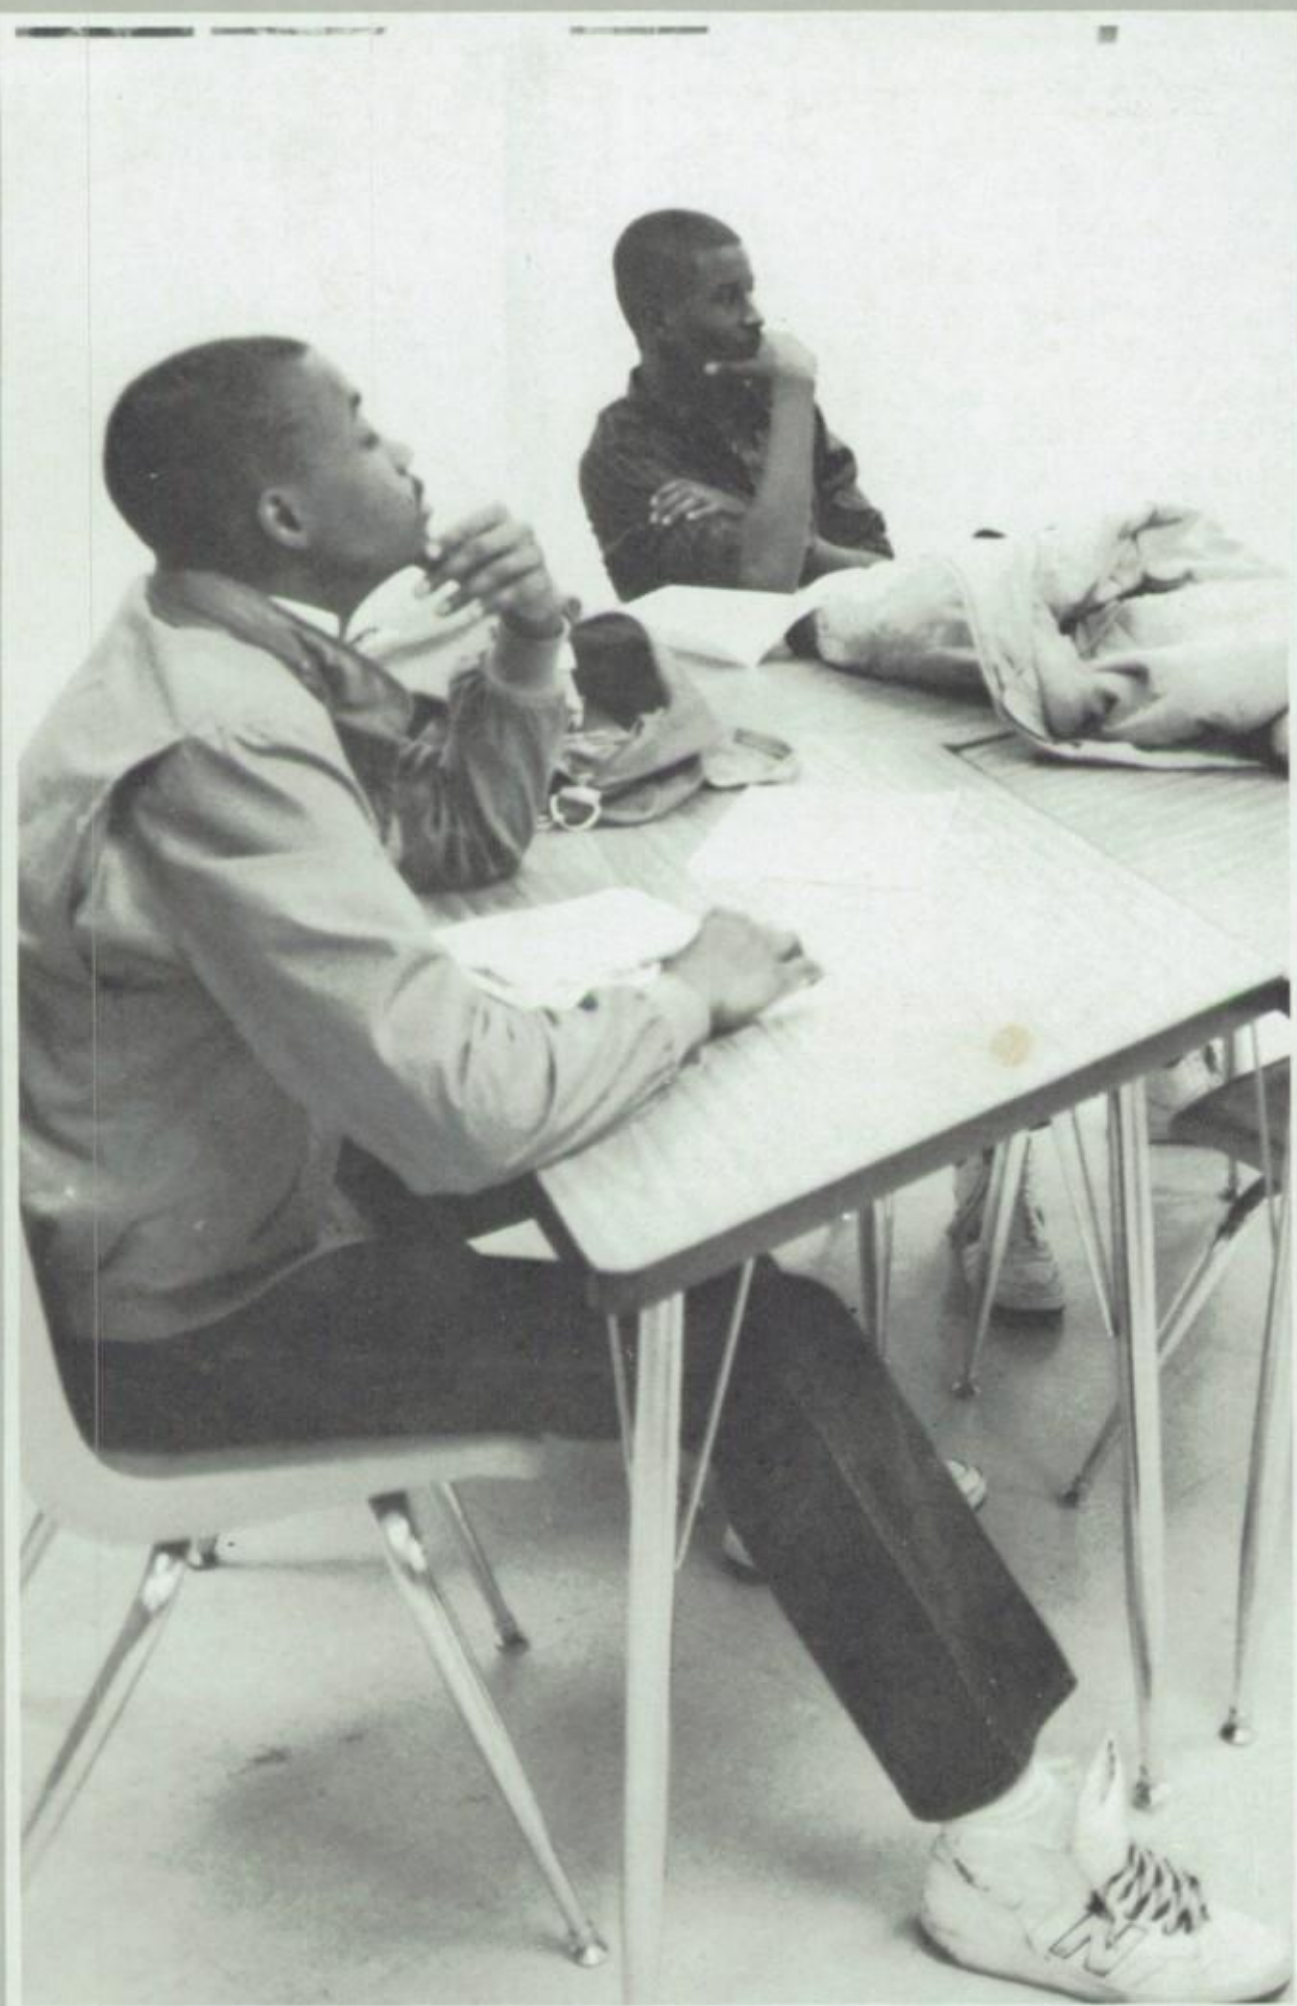

Mr. Thomas Weikel demonstrates to his class how to fill out a tax form.

Vocational Occupations student Deanna Griffin studies her assignment in order to find out about the job market.

Adam White, Pam Simmons, and Tammy Hairston busily work on their Vocational Occupations assignment.

Willie Boyd and Anthony Wallace listen to Mr. Weikel on how to be successful in their job.

James Rogerson completes his work in his ICT class.

Steve Saulter copies down his assignment concerning job opportunities.

Learning by Doing

This year students were, once again, able to take Industrial Arts courses under the direction of Mr. Thomas Duez. Because of student interest shown manufacturing and drafting were, once more, offered and a new course, wood technology, was established.

Manufacturing focused around the shop concept that provided students with the experience that related tools and materials in technical areas to the manufacturer of products in industry. This year manufacturing students constructed various individual projects such as stereo cases, shelves, and furniture.

Students were able to take either Drafting I or the advanced class Drafting II. In Drafting I, students learned how to use drafting materials and concentrated on working on and completing various technical and mechanical drawings. In Drafting II, students again worked on technical drawings and there was an emphasis placed on lettering, projection, and dimensioning.

Wood Technology was offered for the first time this year and was welcomed by Southwest students. This course involved the study of tools, materials, and the processes of various woodworking industries. Students planned, designed, and carried out the construction of various individual projects. Many students chose to construct rabbit boxes, while some built clock cases.

Those enrolled in an Industrial Arts course were not only instructed in class activities but were also introduced to various career possibilities in that field. They were made aware of personal interests and individual abilities and learned how to use these talents in various areas of study.

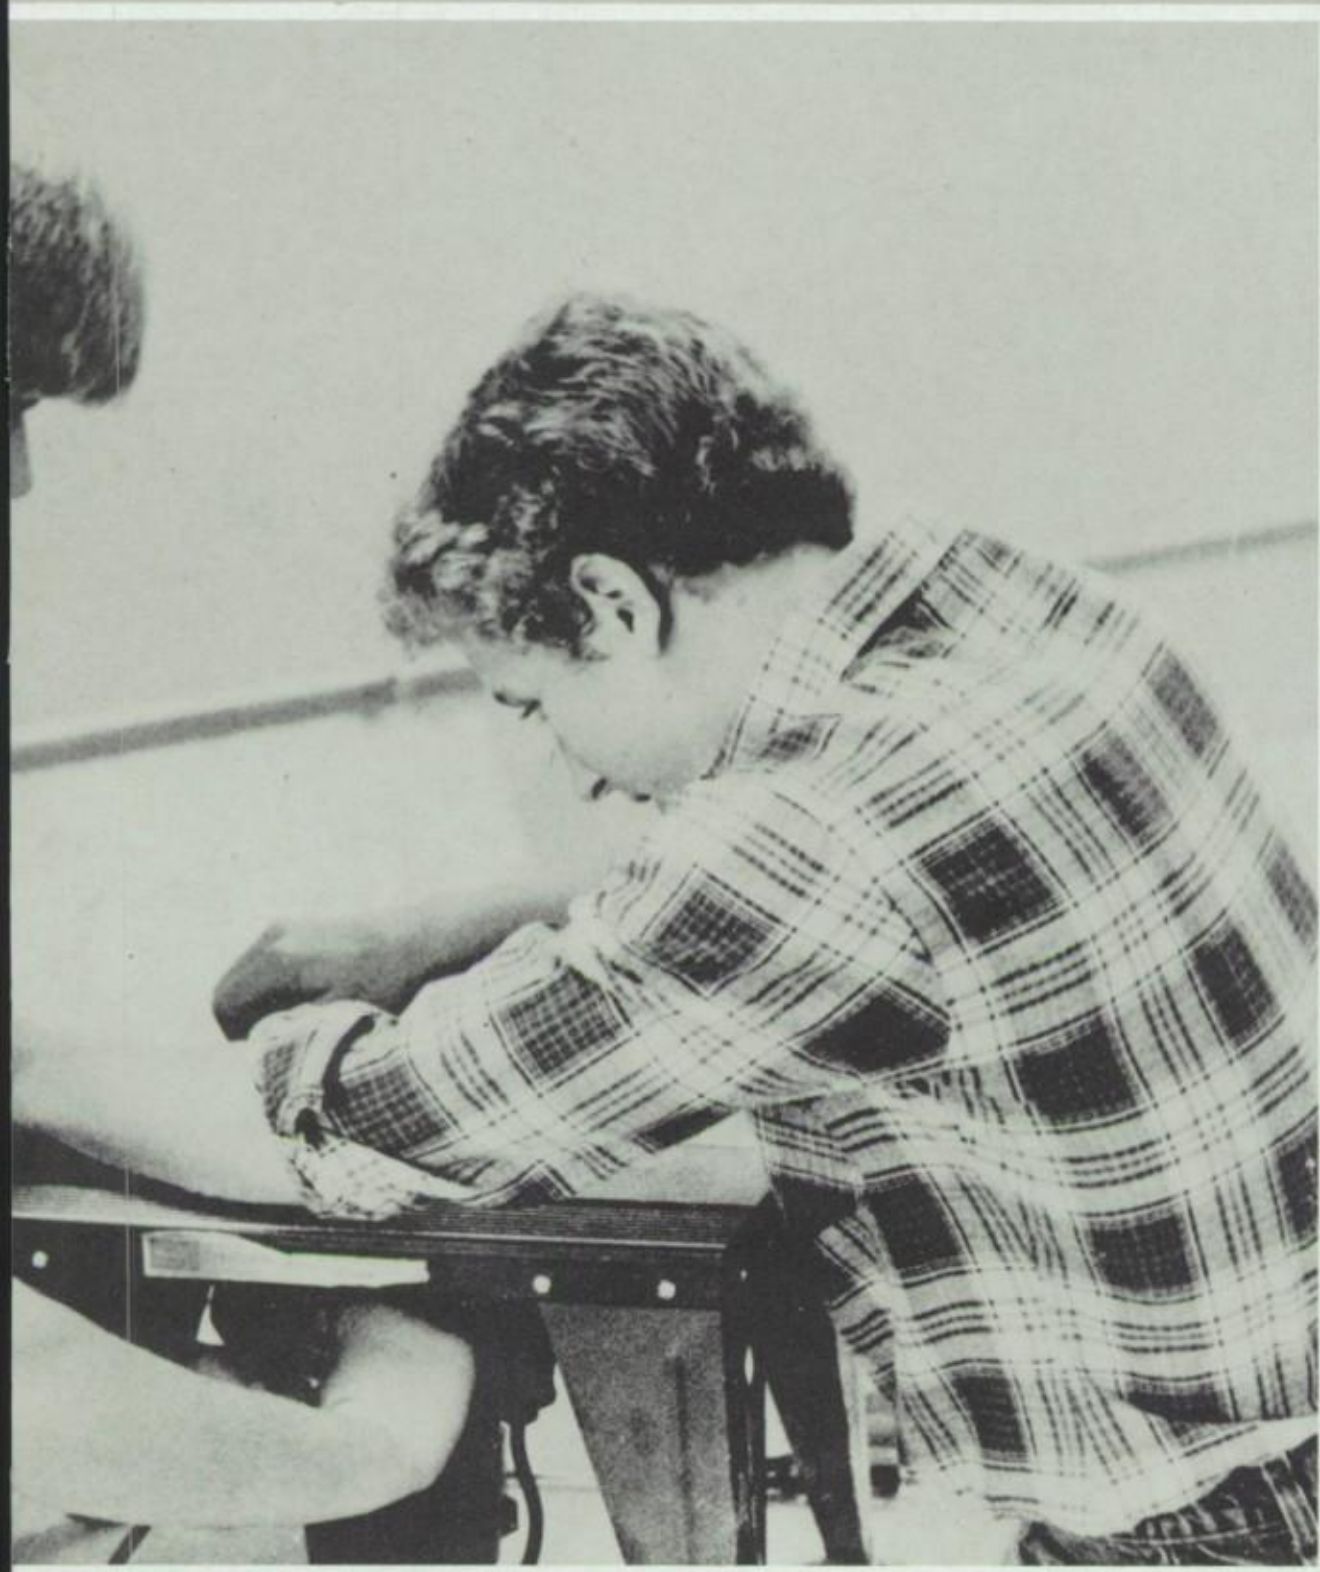

Tim Hawks and Jeff Weiss work with accuracy in order to produce a perfect technical drawing.

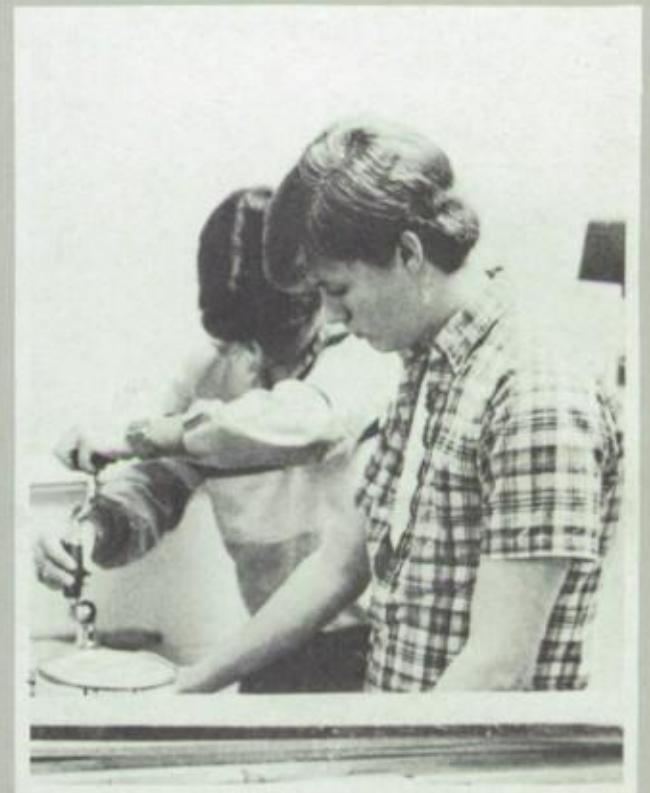

Freshman Phil Mikles is instructed by Mr. Duez on how to complete his sketch in Drafting I.

Jody White and Ermon Rush work together on finishing their project in manufacturing class.

Wood Technology students Marty Akes and Doug Marley apply the skills they learn in class to one of their various constructions.

Roger Jennings and Mark Lowe learn through experience the importance of manufacturing.

After much planning, Scott Sherwood finds he is finally able to begin construction on his wood project.

A Welcome Break

At Southwest this year, freshmen and sophomores were required to take Physical Education. Also many students went beyond this requirement in their junior and senior years by taking Advanced Physical Fitness and Weightlifting. Physical Education class was always looked forward to by Southwest students as it was a welcome break during the course of a difficult school day.

Southwest students participated in a variety of different sports in their gym classes. Some of these activities included basketball, volleyball, weightlifting, aerobics, football, soccer, and track. In addition to participating in these sports, students learned warm-up stretches and conditioning exercises to prevent any unnecessary injury.

Many students took pride in their athletic ability and strength and worked hard to qualify for the 200 lb. club. In order to become a member of the club, students had to bench press two hundred pounds and pass other weightlifting requirements.

The Physical Education department would not be as excellent as it is without the teachers, who double as coaches. It is with their help and instruction that students stay in the best of shape and carry on the great winning tradition in athletics at Southwest High School.

Charwyne McCall is trying to decide what to do with a volleyball.

Southwest's "music makers" were in full tune this year. It seemed that more students were interested in the music oriented classes. Therefore, both the band and chorus showed tremendous improvement in performance.

With a class of nineteen, the Vocal Ensemble worked very hard this year to perform at their best. Everyday, their classroom studies consisted of singing, music terminology, sight-reading, different styles of music, choreography, and performance techniques. Their teacher, Mrs. Anne Carroll, instructed them in these areas and graded them on written tests, classwork, and concerts. The chorus gave many concerts throughout the year, performing for schools and dinners. They presented the school with an assembly of seasonal music and also performed a Christmas concert for Jamestown Middle School. They also provided the entertainment for "Guilford Futures", a student enrichment fund dinner. In addition to these performances, the

The Music Makers

Vocal Ensemble also sang in the musical "Oliver" which was presented by the school.

The band, instructed by Mr. Jay Hanselman, showed great improvement this year. With a group of forty-three, consisting mainly of freshmen, the band had to work very hard to prove that their talent out-weighed their inexperience. The band members studied very hard throughout the whole year and were graded on their playing ability, knowledge of musical terminology, classroom participation, and involvement in activities such as football and basketball games.

The band was in top condition when they gave performances throughout the course of the year. They started the year out by providing the entertainment during half-time at the school's football games. In December, they presented the school with a concert of Christmas music, and in May gave the school a spring concert. Also, a small number of the band students played in the musical "Oliver".

The band not only performed for the school, but also participated in activities outside of school. A number of the band members played in the All-County Band in April. Also, the band competed in the District Band Contest in March at Asheboro High School.

The art students were greeted by a new teacher, with new ideas at the beginning of the school year. Mrs. Deborah McMillan taught Art I, II, III, IV, and Creative Crafts. Being her first year at Southwest, Mrs. McMillan brought with her many different crafts and designs for her students to experiment with. For the returning art students her style of teaching was at first a shocking change, but they soon adapted.

Mrs. McMillan helped Southwest's rising artists work with many different kinds of creative arts. They tested their artistic abilities with fiber crafts, batik, papier maché, print-making, ceramics, sculpture, and creative crafts. Plus, they worked on the simple, basic skills, such as, drawing and painting.

Aside from working in the classroom, some of the Art III and Art IV students participated in the Theatre Galleries Annual Student Art Competition which took place on December ninth through January fourth. The students who took part in this contest were Juniors, Todd Scott and Steve Reagan and Seniors, Robbie Wright, Terry Eatmon, Jeff Clinard, and Chris Carter.

The Art Club, consisted of a little over twenty members, with the chosen officers as follows: President — Chris Carter, Vice President — Jeff Beauchamp, Secretary — Michelle Maynard, and Treasurer — Steve Reagan. They were very active this year with the help of their sponsor, Mrs. McMillan. They were involved in many special activities including the flip card show at our homecoming football game, the making of Christmas ornaments and kite-making. Also, they made frequent field trips to area art galleries.

Curtain Calls

This year Southwest had only one drama class, consisting of thirteen Drama I students and six Drama II students. Even though the drama class was very small, they put together several wonderful productions with the help of their teacher, Mrs. Rebecca C. Yaun.

With Mrs. Yaun as the drama teacher this past year, the drama students were kept very busy. They learned the art of pantomime, they worked on both single and group improvisation techniques, and they created their own characters by playing in both serious and humorous scenes. Plus, they had to learn how to produce a major play. Also, the Drama II students were responsible for producing their own one-act plays.

The drama students gave various performances throughout the course of the school year. Several of them performed scenes from Neil Simon's The Good Doctor for the student body on November second. Also, all of the drama students were involved in a children's theatre play entitled I Didn't Know That! They presented this production on November twentieth for Florence Elementary School. They also gave a major production in the spring.

This year Southwest had a very active Drama Club with the help of their sponsor, Mrs. Yaun. The club consisted of drama students plus anyone else interested in the drama program. The sixty-six members had regular monthly meetings and Halloween and Christmas parties. Also, a few of the members went to The Barn Dinner Theatre in November to see the production of You Can't Take It With You. Plus, all of the club members helped with the major drama production presented the second semester of school.

Some of the students involved in drama not only participated in the school's productions but also in major community productions. Some of the students took part in High Point's "Motion '84." The students who took part in this program were Lisa Burgio, Ashley Ramsaur, Paige Ramsaur, Chanel Liven-good, Marsh Hanson, and Kelvin Phillips. Also, Ronald Dawson worked on Scrooge with the High Point College Theatre.

In this Drama I and II Class, Troy Belton, James Rogerson, and Terrance Richardson practice their homecoming skit.

Heather Motsinger, Terrance Richardson, and Troy Belton perform a scene from Neil Simon's The Good Doctor.

In this scene performed for the school, Ronald Dawson attempts to pull Kelvin Phillips' tooth.

French: A Cultural Explosion

The Study of French was not quite as popular as the study of Spanish this year, for French was only taken by a few students. However, these students learned many fascinating things about France and its language. They learned of beautiful French cities, delicious French foods, old and modern buildings in France, and studied famous French people. They not only experienced the French culture, but they also learned to speak the language. They were taught to write, pronounce, and comprehend the language with the help of the French teacher, Miss Jeanne S. Grana. Miss Grana taught three courses of French this year with French II and III in a combined class because of a lack of students in French III. Having to teach two different subjects in one class couldn't have been easy for Miss Grana, however, she managed to instruct both classes without any problem.

The French Club was very active throughout the course of the year. With approximately fifteen members they had regular monthly meetings, a Christmas party, and a Mardi Gras dinner in early spring. They were also involved in community activities, such as giving food to a needy family at Christmas. The club was sponsored by Miss Grana and the officers were as follows: president — Carolyn Hignutt, vice-president — Patrick Newman, secretary/treasurer — Pam Hayes, and program chairman — Leslie Kester.

These French II Students continue to face the challenge of learning a foreign language.

Spanish: A Cultural Explosion

This year Spanish was, once again, the most popular language studied by Southwest students. The Spanish department was also enhanced by the arrival of a new Spanish instructor, Mrs. Benilde Proscia, who installed in her students the desire to learn about the Spanish people and their culture.

Students who took Spanish I studied reading, writing, pronunciation, and spelling. They also learned vocabulary, and worked on verb conjugation and tape comprehension. The second year of Spanish was an extension of Spanish I, as students concentrated on conversation, translation, and comprehension. In the Spanish III course, an emphasis was placed on cultural aspects and literature of Spanish-speaking countries.

Mrs. Benilde Proscia also served as advisor for the Spanish Club. Mrs. Proscia planned activities which stressed the students knowledge of Spanish-speaking countries and their customs. A Christmas party was held at the house of Kendra Dugan. Festivities included such Spanish customs as the breaking of a piñata. The Spanish Club members also learned Spanish songs and traditional dances. Club members also attended a Spanish festival in the spring. This year's officers were president — Anthonyu Gill; vice-president — Alisa Wagner; secretary — Gina Adams; and treasurer — Chad Coltrane.

The Driving Experience

Learning to drive was an exciting, sometimes discouraging experience. Each year there was one dilemma in a student's life which seemed unavoidable. The continuous problem of getting to and from school confronted each student every morning.

For freshmen, their worry was eased once the announcement of driver education classes was formulated. Most of them spent their first nine-weeks taking the classroom phase. More than anything, however, they wanted to get behind the wheel.

When one became a sophomore and got a driver's license, the next task was that of getting a car. Many students carpooled to save money from high gas prices. Once again, a parking sticker had to be purchased for $1.00 by all students, including bus drivers.

The bus driver's were a big part of transportation for the students who were not able to drive. They also would drive for activities such as sports, clubs, and field trips.

Despite all the troubles and inconvenience, students got to where they wanted to go, and the journey to school each day, brought many unforgettable memories.

These driver's education students are puzzled about driving.

Future Leaders

There were four vocational organizations at Southwest this year: The Future Business Leaders of America (FBLA), The Future Homemakers of America (FHA), The Distributive Education Clubs of America (DECA), and the Explorer's Club.

During the course of the year FBLA, sponsored by Mrs. Carol Rinehardt, participated in the State Leadership Conference held in Winston-Salem on March 28-31 and the District Competitive Events at Dudley High School where eight of our students competed. On February 14, FBLA sponsored "Teacher Appreciation Day" by preparing "goodies" for the teachers.

FHA, sponsored by Ms. Diane Williams, began the year with an Ice Cream Sundae party. They attended the district meeting in Lexington in November and the State Convention in Raleigh on May 10-11. FHA ended the year with a picnic.

DECA, sponsored by Mr. Tom Weikel, aimed to develop a respect for education in marketing which will contribute to vocational competence. It too aimed to promote understanding and appreciation for the responsibilities of citizenship. This involves Marketing and Distributive Education.

The Explorer's Club, sponsored by Mr. Larry Pierce, is a new organization at Southwest. It is composed of students enrolled in the Vocational Occupations program. Their purpose is to promote personal growth through participation in worthwhile educational, vocational, recreational, and social activities.

Leading the School

Student Council worked together to try and get the student body more involved. They had to meet on an alternating schedule during regular school hours.

On October 12, the planning and organization of Homecoming was one of the many activities the Student Council sponsored. It was a magnificent success as members watched the halftime program run smoothly. In November, students brought food for the Student Council to take to a needy family.

New officers were selected by way of their academic ability and their ability to work in the interest of others. The officers who were chosen by the student body were: President — Jeff Beauchamp, Vice-President — Carrie Lackey, Recording Secretary — Jill Murphy, Corresponding Secretary — Julie Morgan, and Treasurer — Rich Toomey.

It was an honor shared by all who were chosen to represent the school. Each assigned officer hoped to continue to experience the wonderful feeling of making a decision that would be in best interest for Southwest.

The Tradition Continues

This year the Southwest Beta Club, once again, carried out its tradition of being an active and enterprising group. The club was organized for students who had a 3.5 grade-point average and good conduct. It was for those who excelled academically and who got involved in school and community projects.

On October 24, the nine Beta Club members inducted seventeen Juniors and three Seniors. After the service, a reception was held in the library honoring the new inductees. On October 30, Beta Club members dressed in a variety of Halloween costumes and participated in the annual Pumpkin Patch held at Four Seasons Mall for the benefit of the March of Dimes.

On November 28, the district Beta Club meeting was held at Ragsdale High School. Students from our school participated in skits and some ran for various offices. Junior Kathy Smiley took part in the talent competition playing a piano selection. In December, club members presented a musical program at Piedmont Christian Home. After the program, they had a Christmas party at the home of Stephanie Craig.

Senior Jill Murphy anticipates life as a dwarf as she presents a skit to Beta Club members.

Throughout the year, club members were involved in several other activities. Members made a Beta Club poster during homecoming week, they sponsored the annual bloodmobile, and they attended the state convention in Greensboro during March. All club members were also required to work a minimum of ten hours a semester in teacher aid service.

Advisors Mrs. Betsy Reagan and Mrs. Benilde Proscia devoted their time outside of school to participate in club events and to help the club in every way. Without the effort of both advisors the success of the Beta club would not have been possible. The officers for the year were president — Laura Grimmer; vice-president — Kathy Smith; secretary — Beckie Green; and treasurer — Laura Redman.

Journalism at Its Best

This year, the Western Star staff was confident that it would provide Southwest Guilford with the best newspaper possible. The Western Star is published eight times a year, one issue per month during the school year.

Each month the staff members discussed and then decided what articles would appear in the next issue of the newspaper. These articles could be one of the following categories: news, editorial, sports, or feature. Next, each member signed up for the article he wished to write about and develop for the next issue. During the next two weeks, he conducted interviews or surveys, gathered data, and did research for his article. After the final copy was written, it was submitted to the advisor for editing. The copy was then typed for its journey to the Jamestown News where it was typeset.

Since Southwest Guilford is a small school, the Western Star was limited to the number of pages it could publish. The number of articles that could be written presented a constant problem. Some months a staff member did not get a byline because there was no room in the paper for the article. One of the reasons for the lack of space was due to advertisements, which is essential for successful newspaper finances.

Sharon Evans looks over a negative that the Jamestown News has sent back to the newspaper staff.

The Western Star, like other school newspapers, had trouble creating the front page, or the news page. Unlike a big city where events occur at such a rapid pace, news did not occur rapidly enough in a school setting. Many times, the news reported is so old by the time it is out everyone already knows about it. It was hard to keep the articles interesting but the staff always seemed to succeed in doing so.

Mrs. Boyles, Western Star advisor, commented, "Working on a school newspaper is a valuable learning experience which can lead to a degree in journalism." She added, "The experience also creates a sense of pride in accomplishment and a growing awareness of the clarity and unity in writing." The staff has excelled in their writing and has created a newspaper which will leave Lasting Impressions on all at Southwest.

Overcoming Obstacles

This year's HORIZONS staff had to work extra hard to produce a yearbook worthy of a Southwest Cowboy. The 1985 yearbook was much more difficult to produce than in past years.

One of the most important factors affecting the yearbook this year was the new administration. Dr. Frazier, the new principal, proved himself a wise businessman. He instructed the entire staff to raise enough money to pay for this year's yearbook as well as pay off the eight-hundred dollar debt which incurred during the course of the past few years. The staff spent many hours going from store to store and house to house trying to sell advertisements. The great effort succeeded; the staff sold more advertisements than ever.

Another obstacle encountered this year was the task of finding a new darkroom. For the first month of school, the photography staff had no darkroom to work in. Finally, after weeks of waiting, a room was issued. The room was welcomed, however it was too large and on a completely different level from the yearbook room. The photography staff made do with what was available, and soon began their work of printing pictures.

Perhaps one of the most difficult chores a yearbook staff has to face is deciding what the theme of a yearbook is going to be, and this year was no exception. The HORIZONS staff had many themes in mind but it took many weeks to narrow the decision down. After much thought the theme "Lasting Impressions" was chosen. This was, the yearbook staff felt, the most appropriate theme as this year will most definitely leave Lasting Impressions on all of us.

The staff this year was one of the largest in the history of Southwest High School. Not only was the staff big in number but the staff members had yearbook at different times of day. Many staff members met during third period, while the rest of the staff met during fourth period.

When the HORIZONS arrived in the Spring of 1985, students quickly began to leaf through the yearbook looking for pictures of themselves and their friends. The staff as well looked through the pages to see that their hard work and long hours showed positive accomplishments. The staff felt satisfied that they had done the best they could and left the administration, faculty, staff, and students with a record of the 1984-85 school year, which would leave Lasting Impressions for a long time to come.

COWBOY ATHLETICS

Despite the short history of Southwest Guilford High School athletics, the Cowboys have dominated larger opponents and conference foes. This past year, as in previous years, the Cowboys continued to dispose of their opponents.

Whether it was in the confines of a hot gym during basketball season, or on the burning track during spring, the Cowboys kept alive the winning tradition they have become so famous for. Behind that winning tradition were the players who were willing to spend many long, hard hours in preparation for the events that made the Cowboys an ever present force in the area of athletics.

Unlike some years, this past year's Cowboy athletic program was well-rounded because of the improvement in such sports as soccer and cross country. Nearly every team Southwest fielded had a winning record, and those that didn't were not far behind in reaching that plateau.

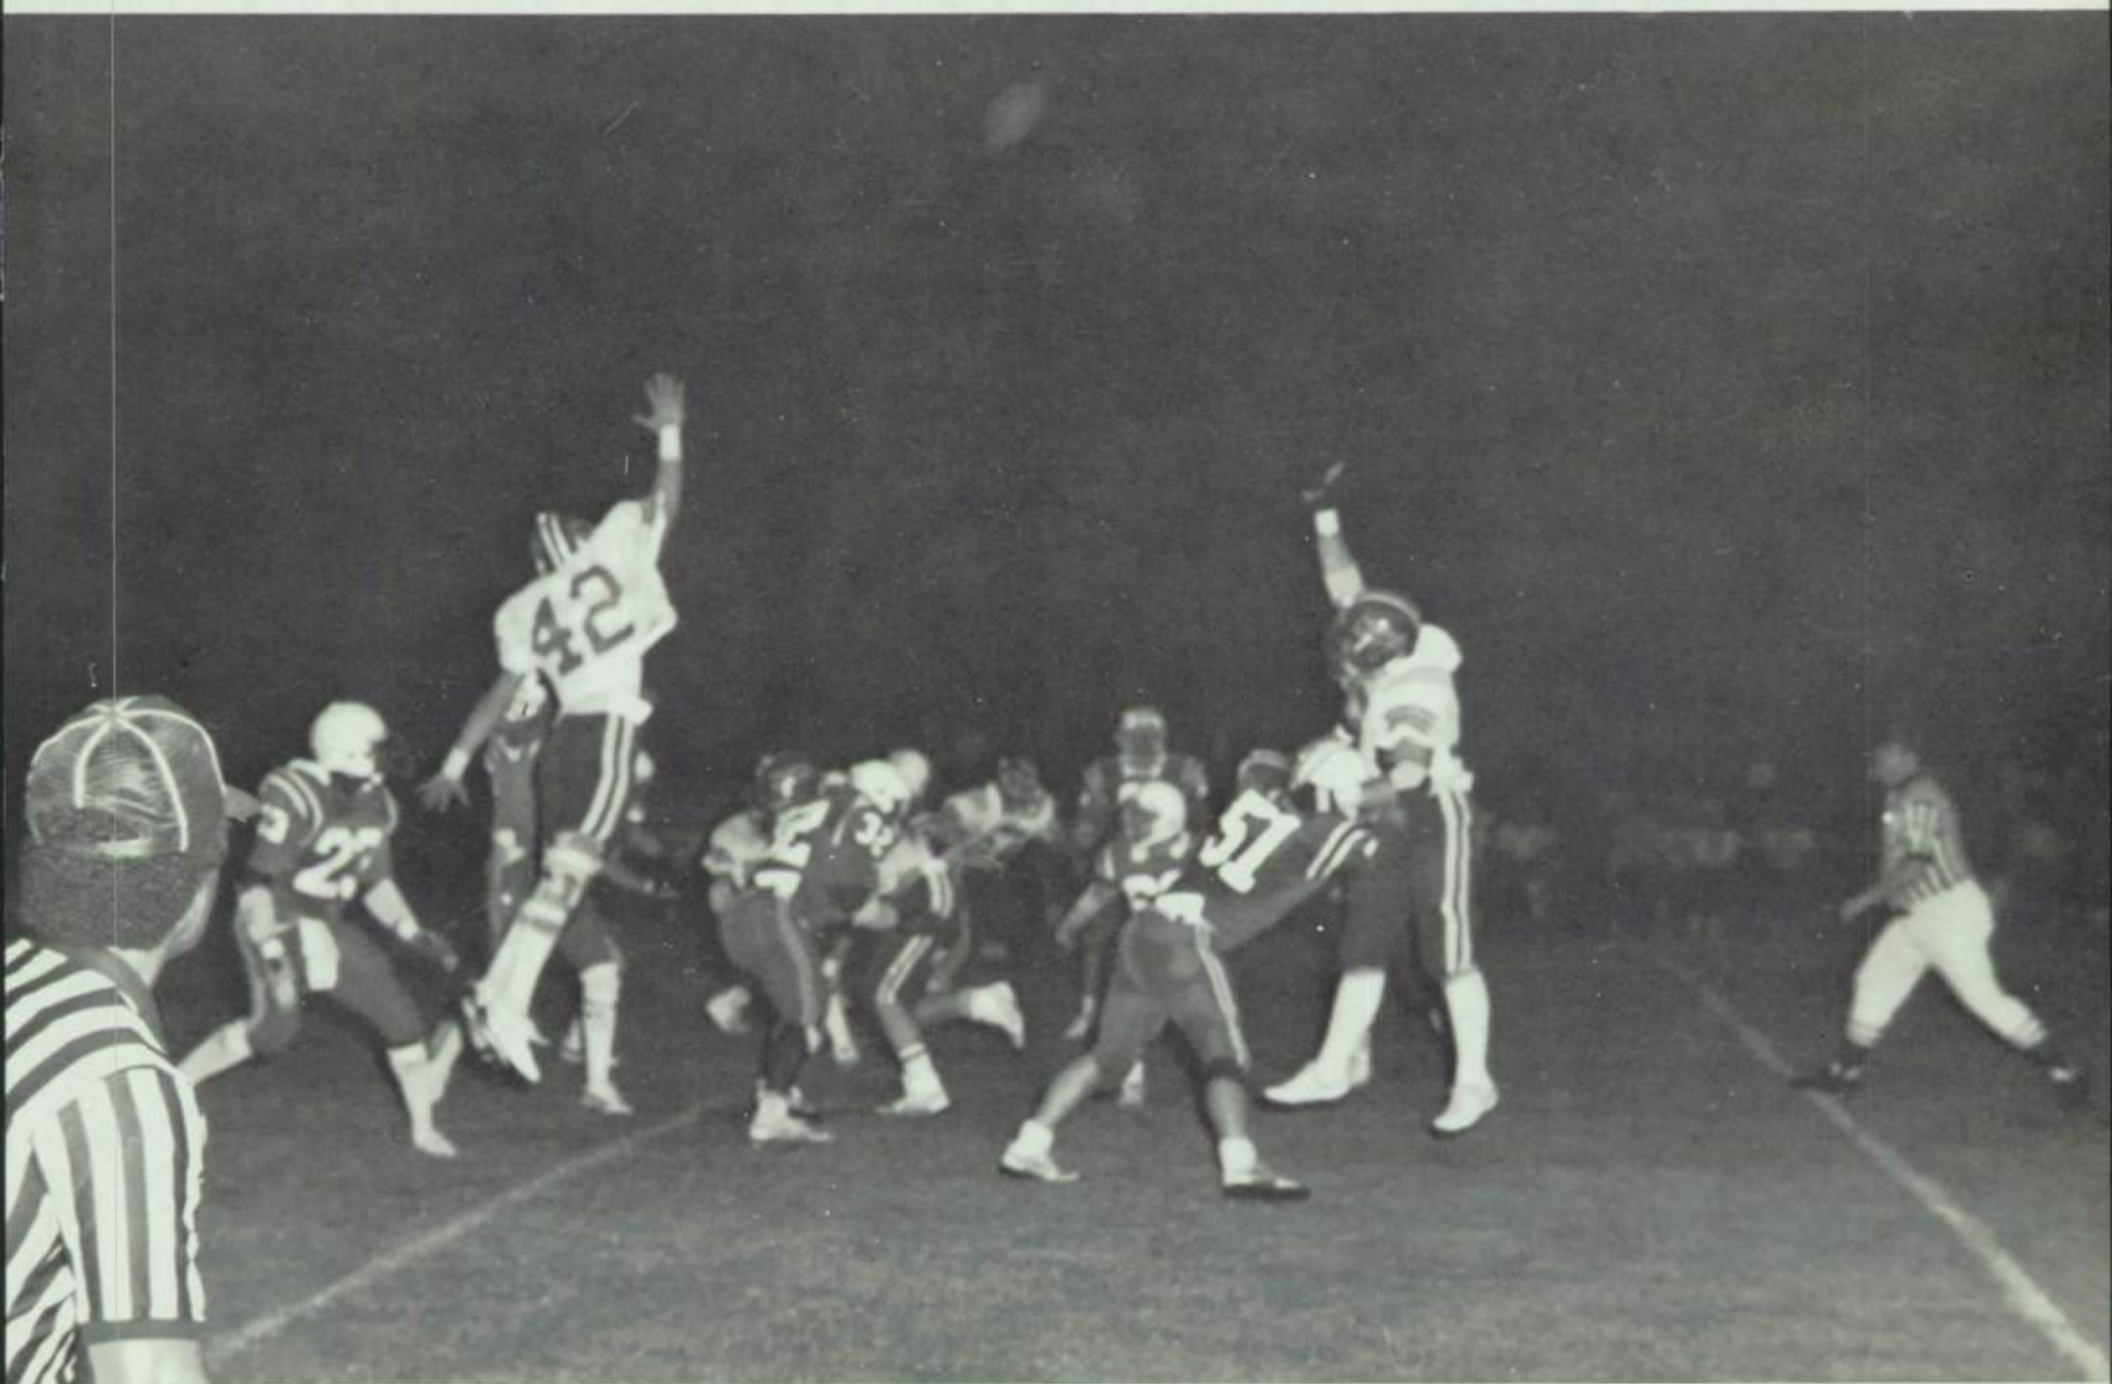

Often forgotten behind the excitement of victories were the people who played a part in them. These people included enthusiastic fans and boosters, managers, and coaches. With the knowledge of great coaches, many moderate Southwest teams became outstanding ones.

With the development of fine young talent, the Cowboys continued to display the poise and enthusiasm needed to go along with one of the most outstanding athletic programs in the area. As the pride of the Cowboys continued to grow, so did the numbers of banners and trophies they collected.

A Swing Into Action!

The 1984 Southwest Guilford High School baseball team swung into action and had their best season since 1981. They began their memorable stretch by winning their season-opener against Northwest Guilford with a score of 9-4. Two days later, they again defeated Northwest by a score of 8-7. The winning run was scored by Billy Greene when Mike Fogleman batted in the winning RBI. This was the first time in the history of the school the Cowboys had beaten Northwest Guilford, a 3-A divisional school.

After a disappointing loss to High Point Andrews High School, Southwest came back to beat them 3-2 in the next game. Todd Black scored the winning run in the final inning. The defeat of High Point Andrews was also a first for the team.

Following this win, came a string of unwanted losses. Finally, after regaining their composure, they came back to beat Denton 13-6.

Perhaps the most spectacular game of the season was played at Ledford on April 18. The situation looked grim for the Cowboys as Ledford scored eight runs in the first inning. However, the Cowboys felt this was not a loss they could accept. With the help of a triple from Donald Ray Pate and the combined effort and support of the team, Southwest came back to win 11-8.

After that win, the team fell into a slump again by taking four defeats in a row. Then on May 14, Southwest played Denton, once again, beating them with a score of 13-5. Though this win lifted their spirits, the Cowboys lost their final two games.

On May 23 at the Spring Sports Banquet, Billy Greene and Donald Ray Pate were awarded the co-most valuable trophies. Here it was also mentioned that Donald Ray Pate had made all conferences as an outfielder. Billy Greene and Jay Boyles received honorable mention.

The Cowboys finished the year with a record of seven wins and thirteen losses. Coach Keith Sedberry said, "I felt the season was successful even if the record was bad because the team never gave up in spite of the circumstances." The Southwest High School baseball team did indeed leave a "Lasting Impression" on the Spring of '84.

The Southwest Guilford High School softball team finished the year with a fair record of five wins and nine losses. Throughout the season, however, the Cowgirls had an undiminishable confidence and pride in themselves.

After a great deal of practice and team determination, Southwest beat Denton 6-4 on April 12. A top contributor to this win was Lesley Springs having three hits, three RBI's, and serving as the winning pitcher. Helping her were sophomores Christi Hart and Jamie Gossett, each with two hits apiece. Alisa Wagner, also a sophomore, sacrificed in two runs which contributed to Southwest's first win of the season.

Even as their spirits were high and their desires set, the Cowgirls lost the following two games. On May 1, however, Southwest came back to beat Denton 5-3. The main factor contributing to this victory was the Cowgirl's defensive effort. Christi Hart, Dana Gregg, Lori Swaim and Lesley Springs, all made excellent defensive plays for the team. The Cowgirls outhit East Davidson 8-5. It improved their record to three wins and five losses.

On May 4, Southwest again won while playing Randleman. The stunned team watched as pitcher Missy Harmon threw a three-hitter and smashed two hits of her own, one of which was a triple. Also helping shock the Tigers was Jamie Gossett who had two hits; Lori Swaim and Lesley Springs each had an RBI. Thee Cowgirls finished the season by losing to Ledford 10-3. Despite the loss, the game was made memorable when Missy Harmon hit a homerun for the team.

Even though their record was not wonderful, the 1984 Southwest Cowgirls' softball team left a Lasting Impression for everyone.

The Winning Edge

Continuing the Cowboy tradition, the Mens' Varsity Track Team once again dominated. The 1984 track season was considered the best in the history of Southwest as the Cowboys won a third consecutive Central Carolina title. The coaches responsible for guiding this outstanding team to victory were Coach Larry Ratliff, Jeff Golden and Donnie Golden. Strong will and raw talent were only a small portion of what made the team a success. The men's track team prove to be superior in the non-conference competition as well as the conference meets. Their pride and determination were shown throughout the entire duration of the season. Long practices, cold weather, aching muscles and blistered heels were only half the battle to becoming true champions. The Cowboys won the Ledford Invitational Relays, setting six records in the process. In 1984, the men broke twenty-three previous school records, one Carolina conference record and one sectional track record. Ray Bailey lead the Cowboys to an eighth place finish in the Greensboro Sectionals and set a new 100-meter dash record of 10.47. In the

Southwest Girls IN ACTION

The Cowgirls' varsity track team gave an impressive performance this season, capturing Southwest's first 2A Conference Championship in girl's track, they set new records and pushed to become the very best. Through long cold days of vigorous training full of the will to win, the Cowgirls accomplished their high goals. The backbones of the talented team were Coach John Tripp and Jeff Golden who led the Cowgirls to finish first in the conference. In this season, many records were broken by young stars, such as Dana Raper in long jump, which took her to the state, Lisa Underwood in 200m low-hurdles, and Melissa Morgan in the 1600m Run and the 3200m Run. Attending the Ledford Relays and Wake Forest Invationals, the Cowgirls had a chance to experience competition outside their conference meets. The girls did exceptionally well in their conference as well as the non-conference meets. Getting first place in all but 3 meets, the girls had an outstanding season which is considered the best record in the history of Southwest. This year was different from previous years as Southwest's softball team helped to contribute to some of the Cowgirls' victories. With the combination of strong endurance and the will to be the best the Cowgirls overwhelmed everyone in their conference.

Far ahead from the next competitor Melissa Morgan captures first place for the Cowgirls.

Tees and Aces

The success of Southwest athletes has always been backed by an unmatched Cowboy spirit. This was evident in the accomplishments of the golf team and the girls tennis team.

The golf team claimed first place in the conference this year for the second year in a row. Their margin of victory was well over one hundred strokes. Since its first year of conference play, Southwest's golf season has always resulted in a strong finish. This year the team broke the school record with an overall combined score of 307, the previous record was 320. The four team members whose scores were combined for this record low were Marty Akes, Steve Hmiel, Mark Carter, and Jody White, with individual scores of 78, 72, 78, 79, respectively.

The girls' tennis team finished their season with a winning record. After having a slow start and a record of two wins and five losses, the girls managed to rack up five consecutive wins in their last five matches, two of which were 8-1 whitewashes. This gave them an overall record of seven wins and five losses. It took a lot of hard work to make such a comeback. These girls really did display the Cowboy spirit it took to win and persevere.

Striding Towards Success

The 1984 boys and girls cross country teams finished the year with their best conference records ever. The boys' second place finish and the girls' fifth place finish in the conference meet were both vast improvements over eighth place finishes a year ago. Under the watchful eye of Coach John Tripp, the runners practiced many hard hours to perfect their skills.

Among the many accomplishments of the team was the setting of a new school record. The Cowboy runners captured the top five positions in a four team meet to record a perfect score. The top finishers were Mark Smith, Tony Herndon, Larry Russell, Chad Coltrane, and David Brinkley. The Cowboys finished no worse than second in a meet all year.

Melissa Gibson anchored the girls cross country team, although, we seldom had enough girls running to post a team score.

In addition to team honors, a few talented Cowboy runners got individual awards for their efforts. By placing third and sixth in the conference meet, Mark Smith and Tony Herndon received All-Conference honors. Smith and Herndon also set a new school record with a time of 17:10. Melissa Gibson's time of 25:07 was good enough for a school record as well.

With nearly everyone returning from this year's team, the Cowboy runners can look forward to fulfilling their ultimate goal of a conference championship next season.

Serves & Volleys

The 1984 Cowgirl volleyball team finished the season with a record of 2-12 in the Central Carolina Conference and a 4-14 showing overall.

On August 30 in the season opener, Southwest volleyball team defeated Thomasville 15-6, 10-15, 15-1. Allison Miller and Karen Duncan were the outstanding players of the game. When matched up again, Thomasville was given no revenge as they were beaten 18-6, 5-15, 15-10.

Unfortunately, this winning streak did not last very long. Southwest lost to High Point Andrews' Lady Red Raiders on September 6 by a score of 3-15, 12-15. Even though Kim Lewis had two service aces, the Cowgirls' loss was inevitable.

A brilliant showing on September 10, however, lifted the team's spirit as they beat Ragsdale in a home game. With a score of 15-8, 15-12, Southwest trampled their familiar rival. Two outstanding players were Captain Alisa Wagner and Carol Wilkinson. Alisa went 20 for 20 on the serving line, and also had two spectacular saves and four aces. Carol had some severely vicious kills.

Though their playing against Ragsdale was exceptional, the Cowgirls had little energy left to defeat their opponents from East Davidson. Southwest lost 15-3, 2-15, 12-15, 6-15, 4-15.

On September 8 in a match with Randleman, the Cowgirls and the Lady Tigers received one win apiece. Randleman won the first series 6-15, 9-15. However, not wanting to accept another loss, the Cowgirls came back to defeat their opponent 15-0, 3-15, 15-6.

One week later on September 25, the Cowgirls traveled to Denton. Though they had that Cowboy spirit, it was not enough. They lost to the Lady Red Raiders 4-15, 10-15, 3-15, 11-15.

To finish the season, the Cowgirls played the Ledford Panthers at home on October 16. Even though Carol Wilkinson had four service aces, the Cowgirls lost 9-15, 5-15, 2-15, 9-15.

With most of the year's team returning next season, the outcome looks very good.

Better by Leaps and Bounds

The 1984 Southwest Guilford High School Soccer Team posted a winning record for the first time in the school's history. This feat was accomplished by skilled returning players and a host of talented new faces. Another major factor of the team's success was the many hard hours spent on the practice field under the direction of new head coach, Ray Alley.

Throughout the season, there were many high points and a few disappointing times. Perhaps the most exciting game of the year was when the Cowboys played host to Western Guilford. The two teams battled to a scoreless tie during regulation, but Glenn Lanham scored during overtime to give the Cowboys a thrilling victory. The most heartbreaking defeat of the year came at the hands of the Ragsdale Tigers. Soundly defeated by the Tigers in their first meeting, the Cowboys came out gunning for a win in the second game. Southwest built up an early 2 to 0 lead in the first half. But the Tigers stormed back in the second half with a few well-earned goals to hand a 3 to 2 setback to the Cowboys.

Several Southwest players earned post-season honors for team. Jim Mackey and David Frankena received honorable mention status.

A Step Above

In succession with conditioning programs the Southwest Cowboy football players attended this summer, practice began the first of August. In spite of the heat, the Cowboys worked long and hard to attain perfection. Practice proved worthwhile in the triumph made over Ragsdale High School accompanied by an overwhelming atmosphere full of students, parents, faculty, and alumni. The mighty Cowboys went on to eliminate six of the eight contenders.

Much of the glory in this winning season was the result of an excellent coaching staff supporting the football team. Head coach Roy Boyles served with assistance of Jim Coggins, Bob Kime, Don Lewallen, Larry Ratliff, Lloyd Stover, Richard Welch, and Mike Whittington.

There were also many others who assisted the Southwest Cowboys. Gratification is given to the team physician, Dr. Joe Hardy, for all of his hard work. Much effort was further contributed by the Booster Club; this being involved with the football program as well as the operation of the concession stand.

With the help of all key individuals and the enthusiastic fans, the Southwest Cowboys had a tremendously exciting and rewarding season. The Cowboys maintained overpowering spirit throughout the entire season. Congratulations Cowboys!

Striving for Victory

As a result of the abundant effort displayed by the junior varsity football team, the Cowboys experienced a victorious season. The Southwest Cowboys, once again, came out on top.

The season started off with a triumphant game against the Ragsdale Tigers. The season was concluded with yet another victory over Ledford High School.

All in all, the junior varsity football team experienced eight wins, one tie, and one loss. With a team like this we all were very proud to be Cowboys.

Southwest Spirit-Lifters

Behind every victorious team in high school sports is a supporting group of fans. Whether it be football or basketball, these talented group of students create a tremendous amount of enthusiasm. It is quite evident that this encouragement comes from the cheerleaders. The cheerleaders are dedicated to creating and maintaining fan and team spirit. Their main job is to get more students and fans involved and to add more excitement in the air. Besides cheering on the teams and representing our school at games, their spirit and peppy attitudes give the teams a sense of dignity of which they are proud. The Junior Varsity and Varsity Cheerleaders put in long, hard hours of their summer vacation preparing for the upcoming season. Because of this constant determination they achieved many goals and received recognition in and away from school functions. Both squads went to North Carolina State University Champion Cheerleading Camp this summer where each received honors. The Varsity captured an "Award of Excellence" for good attitude and sportsmanship, a "Yes We Can" for good effort, a "Super Great Ribbon" and a spirit stick. Laura Grimmer received a "Super Great" for leadership, Paige Ramsaur received a "Super Great" for best air guitar and the entire squad brought home the trophy for second place Varsity Division. Just as important, the Junior Varsity won two "Yes We Can" for outstanding spirit and good effort, and they also received a blue ribbon for "Super Sharp Squad". The captain, Charwyne McCall won a "Super Great" for leadership. The cheerleaders would not have made it without the caring advice and guidance of their sponsors. Mrs. Sledge and Miss Williams were Varsity's sponsors for the 84-85 season. Mrs. Morton and Mrs. McMillian were the Junior Varsity's sponsors for the year. Thanks to them the squad remained in order and had a successful season. If the task was just to raise spirits or entertain the crowd, the cheerleaders gave it their all. Without their support and cooperation the sports program at Southwest would have, undoubtedly, been much less successful.

Pep rallies are only a part of how S.W. cheerleaders show their enthusiasm and spirit for our school.

As a result of enthusiasm and determination, the Southwest Cowboy junior varsity wrestlers had a rewarding season.

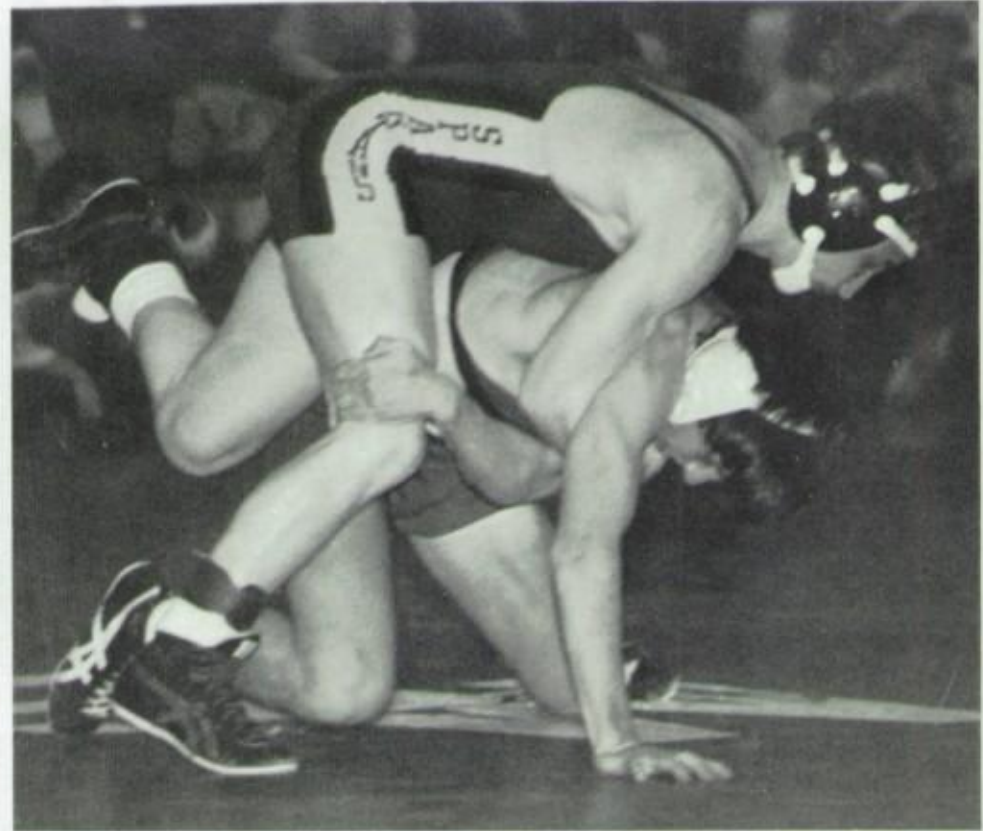

The junior varsity team finished off the season fourth in the Greensboro Invitational, third in Jamestown Jayvee, and fourth in Cowboy Invitational.

Southwest's varsity wrestlers ended the season with an outstanding record. They ranked fourth in Greensboro Invitational, second in Tigerland, 9-2 in dual meets, and were Conference Champs for their sixth consecutive year.

Recognition went to Southwest's conference champions: Robert Alston, Chris Deece, and Mike Metiver. Special congratulations to our four-time champions Jeff Beauchamp and Bernard Briley.

Wrestling coach Jim Coggins has obviously done an excellent job. "I'll really miss our graduating seniors. They've been heavy contributors to four Conference Championships, and as individuals, they've brought recognition to Southwest state-wide. We'll have nine outstanding starters returning next year."

Shooting Stars

With no members returning from last year, it was obvious that the 1984 girls' junior varsity had their work cut out for them. Needless to say, they got off to a poor start. As the season progressed, the Cowgirls found themselves faced with a record of one win and five losses. To brighten things up, the team put forth all the effort they had and received two consecutive victories in two straight days. East Davidson's Lady Dragons were defeated 33-32.

Our old rival Ragsdale was stunned as Kris Hoppensteadt racked up twenty-eight points on the Tiger's home court. A score of 48-43 enabled the junior varsity girls to split its two games with Ragsdale for the season.

The junior varsity boys had a more successful season. With a record of twenty-one wins and one loss, the boys showed improvement over last year's record. Under Coach Bob Kime, the team showed maturity and skill.

On January 5, the Cowboys played a close game with the Tigers of Ragsdale. Leading the team, sophomore Lemone Shaw scored twenty-three points which helped the team to a 69-66 win over Ragsdale.

As Coach Lloyd Stover said, "I believe the junior varsity team is a place to learn good fundamentals and team work." That, they did.

For the fifth season in a row the Southwest Guilford Cowgirls Varsity Basketball Team showed their dominance by winning the Central Carolina Conference title. Picked to finish no higher than second place in the conference, the defending State Champions were once again the class team of the league.

The team was led by a talented crop of players and first year head coach Donna Strickland. The Cowgirls posted a 20-2 record which was due largely to the fact that the girls played outstanding team basketball.

Without a doubt, the most exciting game the Cowgirls played was against Ledford in the last game of the regular season. With center Derita Craig missing the game, Shantee Cambell led the Cowgirls to a thrilling 63-62 double overtime victory over the Panthers. Other key victories came against Central Davidson and West Davidson, and once again the Cowgirls defeated archrival Ragsdale twice.

Four players averaged double figures in scoring for the Cowgirls. Paula Keaney, Derita Craig, Shantee Cambell, and Leslie Springs each averaged over ten points per game with Keaney leading the way with 16 per game. Derita Craig collected 12 rebounds per game and also blocked one shot per contest. Point guard Leslie Springs led the team in steals with six per game and also handed out a team leading five assists per game.

With the loss of five seniors from the previous year's team, the Cowgirls faced an uphill struggle. But with much hard work and determination, they proved that winning just came naturally to outstanding players.

Watch Out for the Varsity

Southwest Guilford has always had a reputation of having a good basketball team and this year was no exception. The Cowboys managed to maintain their high ranks in this, the last year of the Central Carolina Conference.

After a booming take-off into the season, Southwest managed to defeat four different 4-A schools; the biggest defeat going to Ragsdale for the first time in four years.

The Cowboys kicked off conference play with five straight wins but the last four weeks presented the Cowboys with four conference losses. This dropped the Cowboys from an early season first place rank to the next level down, second only to Central Davidson. This finish secured them a spot in district playoffs and gave high hopes for a possible conference championship.

The Cowboys will enter a new conference next year, but it will greet this situation with willful talent and desire.

Ken Smith follows up a missed shot against Ledford as Matt Holmes anticipates another possible chance.

Personal Impressions

It took a lot to make a good school — work, effort, spirit, and soul. And when you're good everybody knows it. Well everybody knew about the Cowboys. We were the best. But they didn't know the special feelings we all had for our one-of-a-kind school. Southwest had been put through many trials and tribulations. When these trials came and went, you could always count on Southwest to be solid — you just could not beat a good thing.

On the following pages, the main things that made our school great were captured — the people — and the times we shared together. Those unforgettable people that impressed themselves on your life and didn't ever leave. Take a look now — and see the best part of Southwest High School.

Sophomore Scott Smitherman visits his locker in-between classes.

Senior Tim Hawkes and Sophomores Susanna Weaver, Channel Livengood, and Gina Adams find time to study during lunch.

Sophomores Brian Tucker and Dean Turman, and Junior Flynn Ruth converse after school.

Senior Jill Murphy gets a sandwich for lunch.

Administration

Southwest was greeted by many new faces. Dr. George Frazier, our new principal came to us from Southeast Junior High School. Dr. Frazier worked hard to make 1984-85 a year of determined effort for improvement. He changed many rules and added some only to help Southwest grow and accentuate its standards.

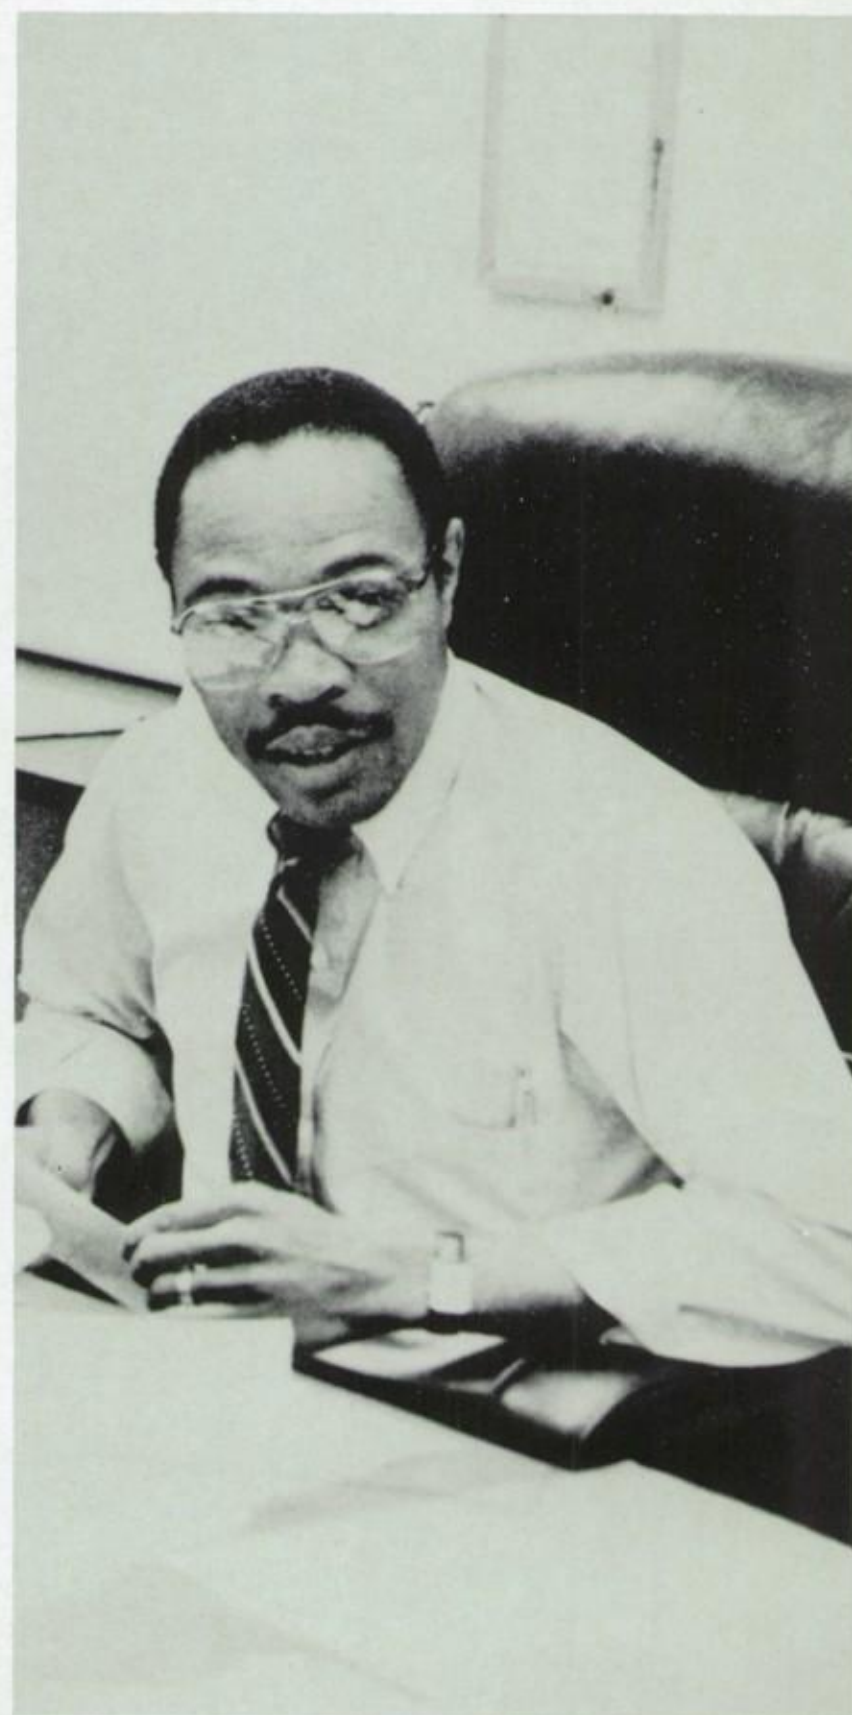

Mr. Ken Wheat was also a new face. Mr. Wheat worked hard to make Southwest a better place to learn, grow, and develop.

Another face one might not have recognized was the new secretary, Mrs. Betty Culkin. She worked in the office doing many jobs to help Dr. Frazier and Mr. Wheat.

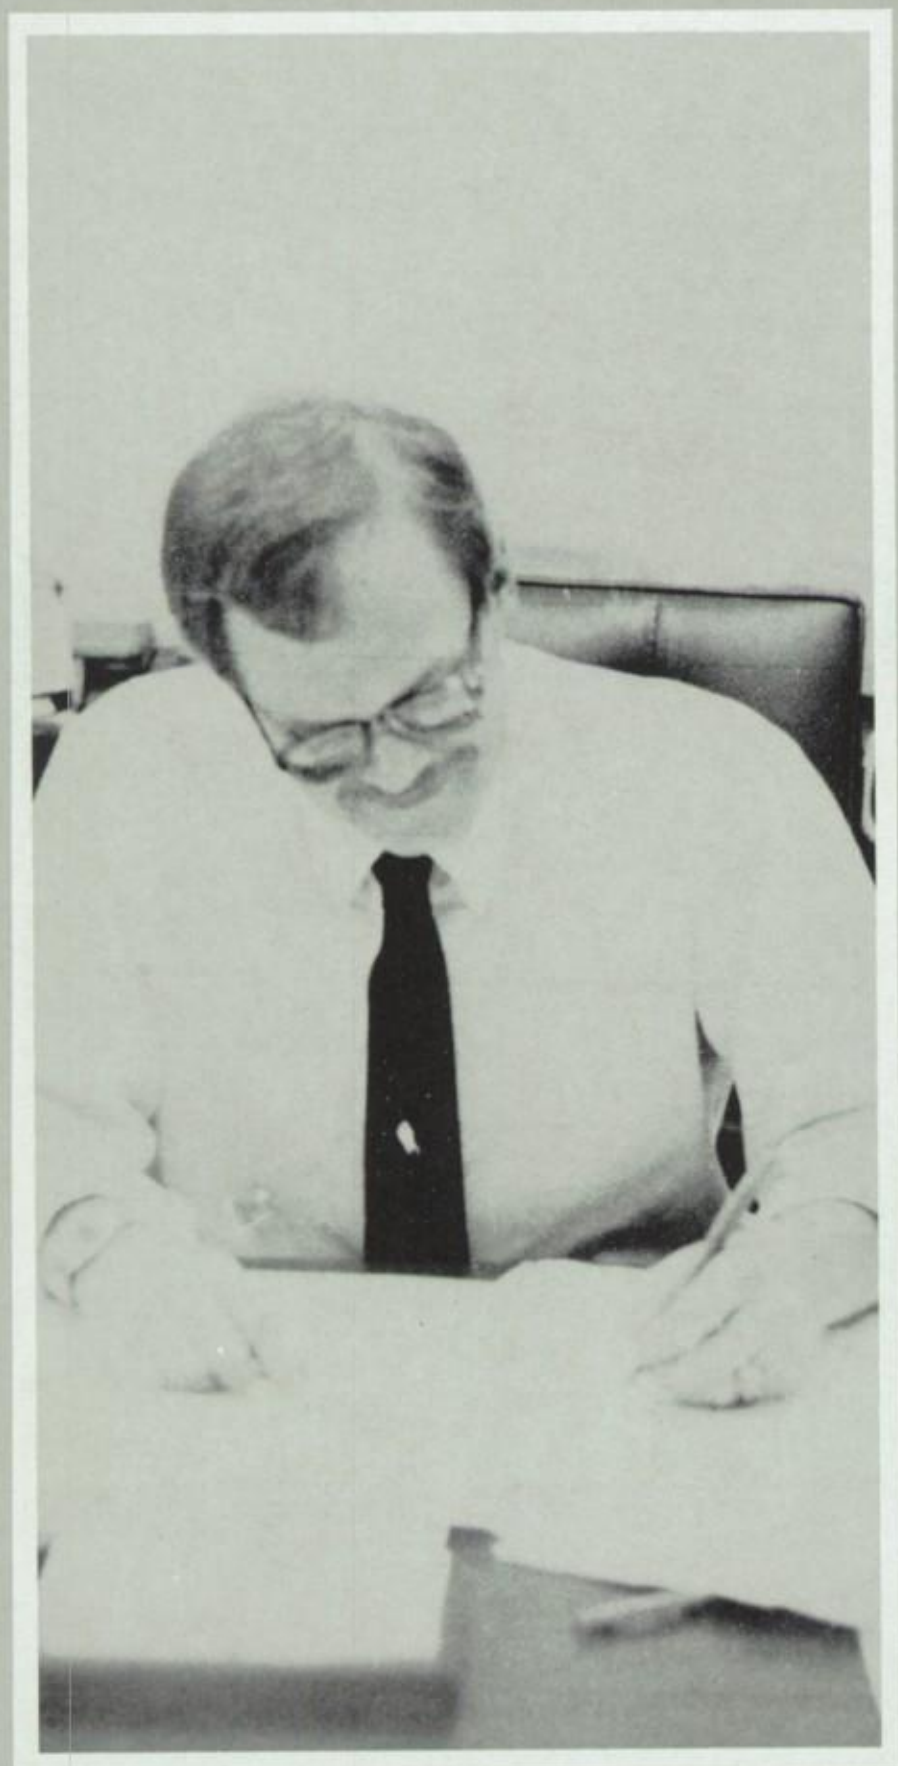

Mrs. Marylee Hartley was remembered from last year. Her cheery smile helped many make it through a day while she did her duties, her being school treasurer for many clubs and groups has played a key role in the overall function of Southwest.

Another familiar face was Mrs. Sue Ann Fusselman. She was in charge of attendances. Her determination helped to keep students at school in order to learn.

These five people constitute the administrative body at Southwest. They each worked long hard hours to make Southwest High School the best place to learn. Without them, Southwest High School may have become Southwest Junior High School.

Mr. Wheat, as always, is hard at work.

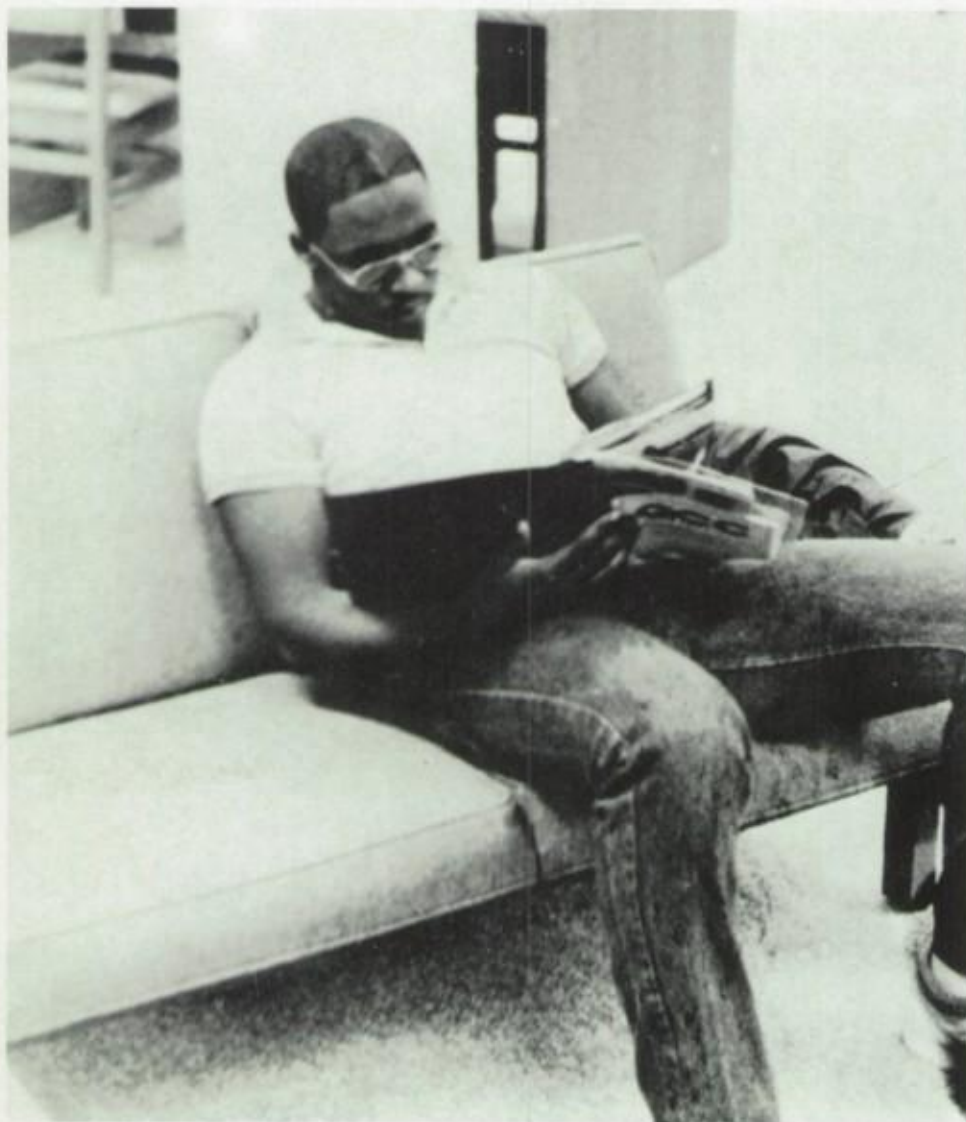

Mrs. Hartley makes sure she made no errors.

Mrs. Culkin takes a break to smile for the camera.

Robbie Wright relaxes while reading a magazine, one of the many reference materials made available to students.

Mrs. Patricia Brown, Libraray Aide, works diligently to keep the library and its various materials in order.

Sophomore J. J. Yurchison and senior Jim Mackey find research information needed to compelte their assignment.

Mrs. Nancy Payne, caught at a busy moment by a yearbook photographer, shows what a guidance counselor's job is all about.

Mrs. Pam Hill poses for the photographer.

Trail Blazers

We were privileged to have a hard-working guidance staff this year at Southwest Guilford High School. Our school year opened at a rapid pace. Schedules had to be reworked and changed as new rules were enforced, thus each of the two guidance counselors, in association with Mr. Ken Wheat, assistant principal, were kept occupied. The guidance counselors were also of great aid to the seniors in preparing them for future college careers.

During the 1984-85 school year, students were greeted with a new face in the guidance area. Mrs. Nancy Payne was the new counselor assigned to students with last names beginning M-Z. Mrs. Payne attended both Auburn and Radford Universities and majored in education, guidance, counseling, and student personnel. She has worked for three years as a guidance counselor and has come to Southwest from Jamestown Middle School.

Accompanying Mrs. Payne is Ms. Mary Dunlap who has worked on the guidance staff since the opening of Southwest in 1979. She attended the University of North Carolina at Greensboro and Appalachian State University, majoring in Library Science and Counseling. Ms. Dunlap worked with Southeast Senior High School for ten years prior to her presence at Southwest.

Mrs. Payne has expressed her feelings for Southwest by saying, "I am favorably impressed with the students here at Southwest and I am enjoying getting to know them."

The library also provided students with a place of importance and necessity as far as book use and academic research. Classmates could be found reading, writing, or simply looking through magazines available to all. The library was also an excellent source of information for reference material, as books containing critical analysis were easily obtained and utilized.

Our head librarian, Mrs. Pam Hill, was a tremendous help to students, along with library aide Mrs. Patricia Brown. Both individuals could be found assisting students in their search for knowledge, or simply keeping the library and its many materials in order.

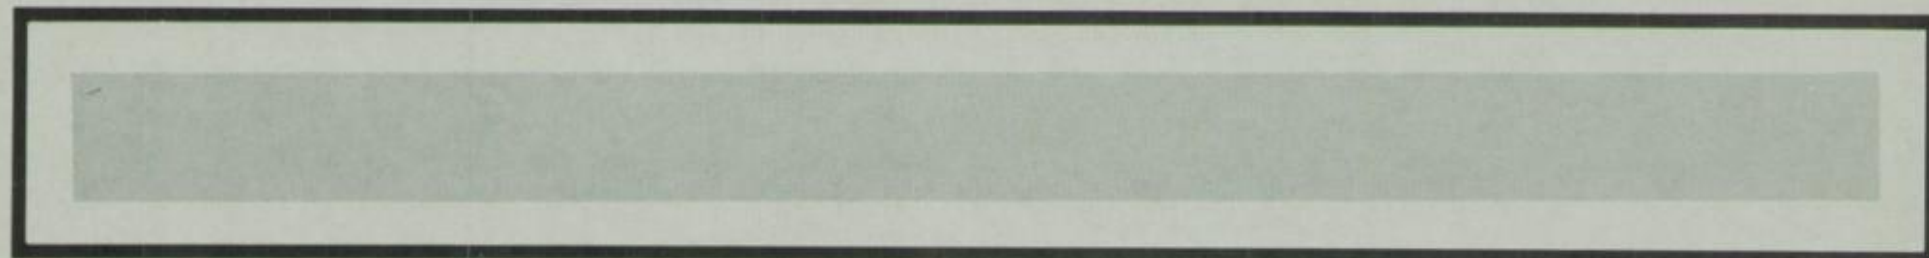

Ms. Mary Dunlap uses her guidance counseling skills to aid Ann Bender with her college application.

United Effort

The cafeteria workers were a group of people who were often overlooked. They were the ones who arrived early in the morning and began to prepare breakfast for those who chose to eat. After breakfast was over, they began to prepare the different lunches. This year there were two a la carte lines in which many choices of food were offered. Mrs. Ruth Jones, manager, along with the other staff members, tried hard to add variety to the meals. They worked carefully to prepare meals that were nutritious and balanced for the students, faculty, and administration. Even though their days were hectic, you were always greeted with a friendly smile when the mealtime bell rang.

Cafeteria Staff (l-r): Linda Bowman, Cindy Smith, Bernice Donathan, Eva Atkins, Corine Taylor, Irene Shields, Vonnie Beeson, and Myrtle Sanders.

Mrs. Irene Shields and Mrs. Cindy Smith are diligently helping prepare lunch for those that choose to eat.

Mrs. Ruth Jones, manager, takes a moment from doing some of her paper work to pose for a photographer.

Mrs. Jan Von Cannon is interrupted by a photographer while performing one of her many duties as a custodian.

Behind The Scenes

The custodians of Southwest were a group who also went without appropriate recognition or appreciation. They were the first to arrive in the mornings to open the building for another day of instruction and activity. They made sure the building was cooled and warmed as needed. Each day they could be seen making the building a cleaner and nicer environment to be in. In the afternoons, the custodians locked each door and window to further insure the security of Southwest, as a school building and as an important place for many individuals, for many devoted Cowboys.

Mrs. Eva Atkins and Mrs. Myrtle Sanders count the money that is taken in during the fourth period lunch rush.

Mrs. Donna McFadden takes a moment from her very busy schedule to pose for a picture in the hallway.

Mr. Willie Morgan smiles for the photographer as his picture is taken.

The Students

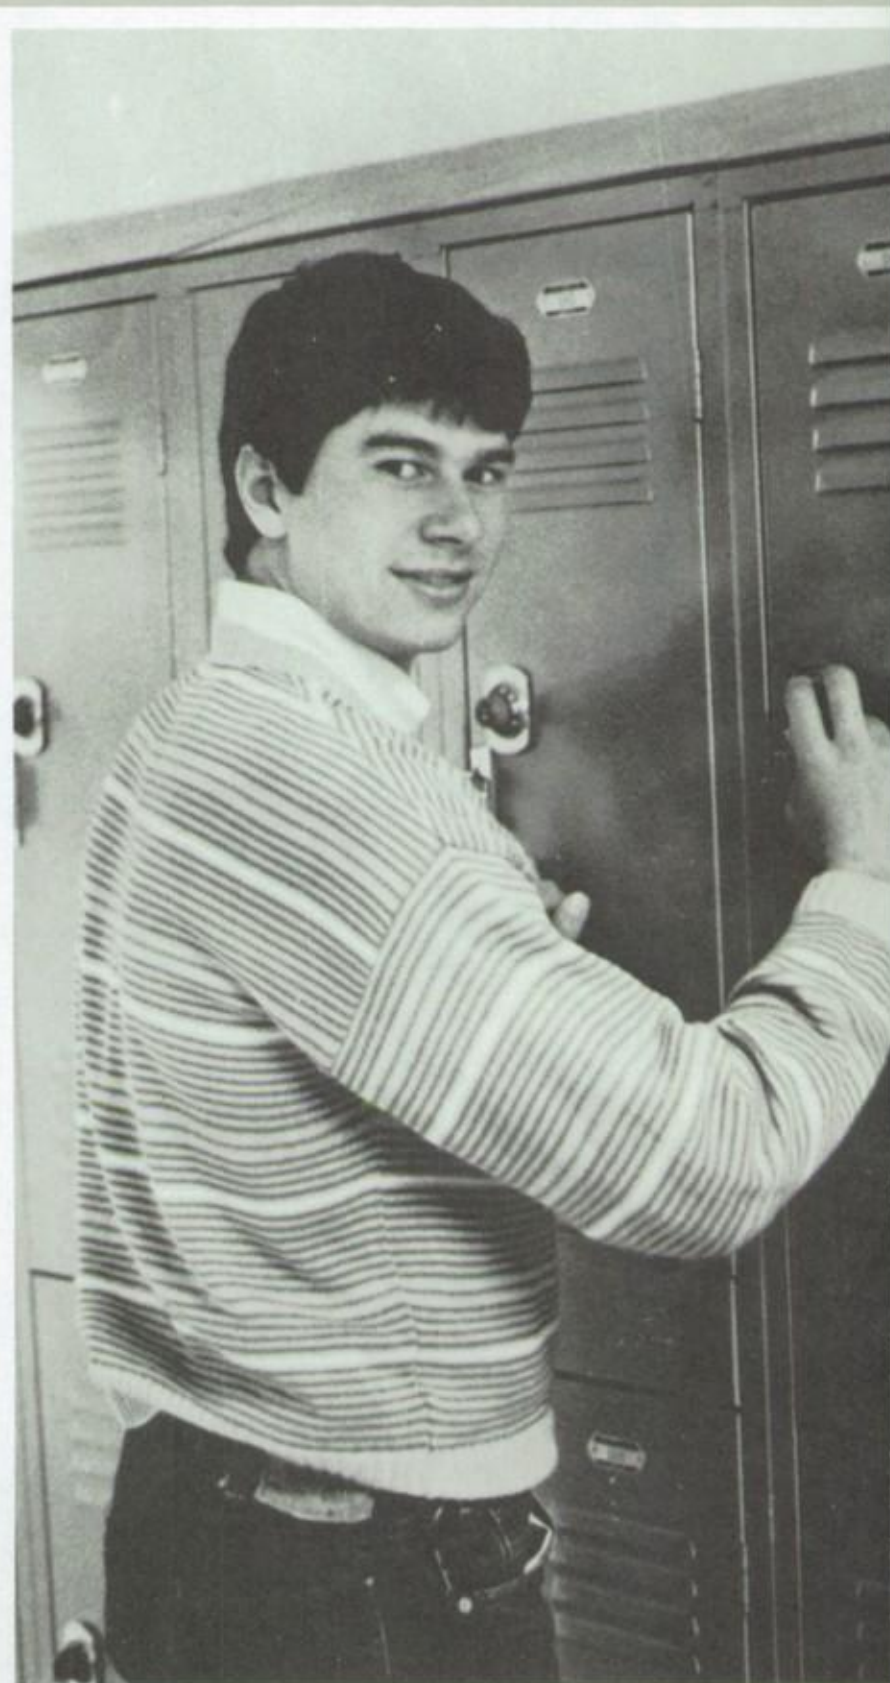

The students of Southwest Guilford High School have proven to be a varied group of individuals ranging from "jocks" to "brains". Each one did their own separate things such as studying, dancing, and swimming. They showed their everlasting school spirit by cheering at games and other school activities.

Even through the tough times, they always seemed to stay together, like a family. And though the odds may have been against them at times, their undying friendships have forever shone.

As Cowboys, they always had immense spirit for Southwest within their hearts. Although the years at Southwest were short and fast-paced, they were just the beginning of the long, important journey ahead. The memories will always be a part of their minds, as Southwest Guilford High School will flourish and forever be number one.

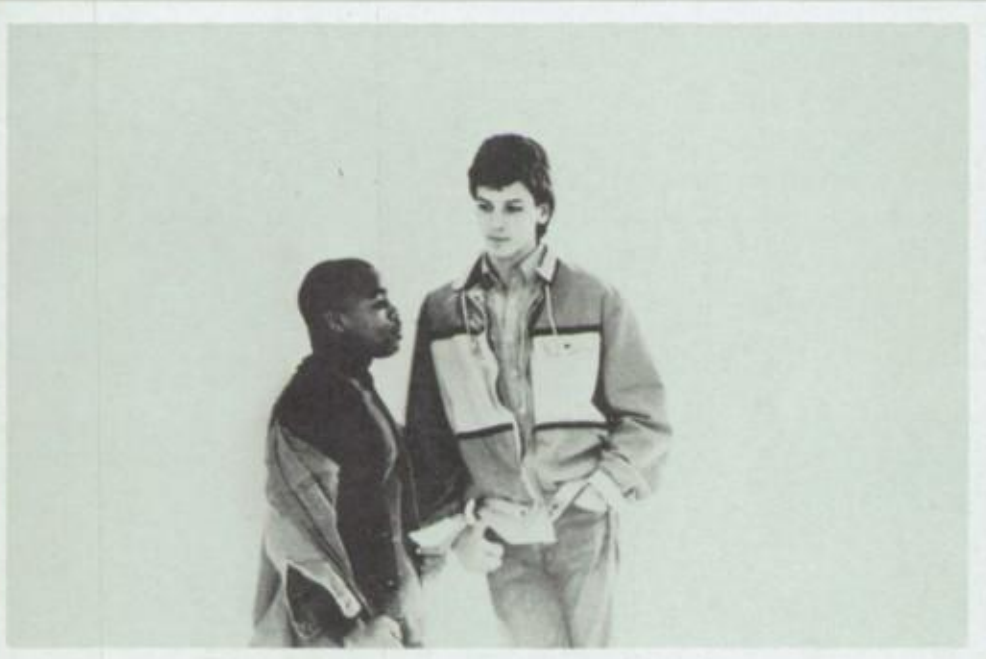

Karen Duncan is having a hard time deciding what she needs to take home in order to complete her assignments.

Between classes, Logie Porter tries to remember his locker combination.

While standing in the hall, John Pitt and Ben Barham are found discussing who is taller than whom.

Tuey Amos shows the correct and proper method for putting in a chew.

Dan Davis has a great smile that would brighten and enlighten anyone's bad day.

Steve Fritz and Rex Badgett seem to be having some interest in what John Dudley has to say.

The Newcomers

This year was a new beginning for the future class of 1988. They were the largest class at Southwest and they definitely made themselves a part of the school. The freshmen were excited and enthusiastic about their first year in high school. They participated in athletic and other school-related activities.

Attending a small school gave these newcomers a chance to become very active in school clubs and sports, and they were able to take courses that were not offered to them while in middle school. The athletes had the opportunity to contribute to the sports program, and with their participation, they added greatly to the many victories gained in various sports.

Adjusting to this new change took patience and understanding from everyone. It took time to find the right classrooms, the appropriate teachers, and to get used to high school life, but they handled this transition and became an important addition to Southwest.

While eating lunch, Mike Smiley and Lewis Perdue enjoy conversing.

Freshman Stacy Smith takes a moment out of his busy schedule to show us his million-dollar smile.

Freshman Tami Gardner listens patiently as Niki Black describes her day.

Half the Way

Sophomore Rusty Harvell is caught, on film, without a dip in his mouth.

As yet another school year rolled by, the sophomore class of Southwest High School felt more at home and adjusted to the high school routine. Being the second largest class, they had real Cowboy spirit by showing up at various school events to provide spirit and support. As a matter of fact, their voices could be heard more than any other class, most of the time. They became active in many clubs and overcame their "post-freshman shyness", as they felt more and more like "true Cowboys".

Being a sophomore meant more than just moving up another year. To many, it meant turning the age of sixteen and getting their drivers' licenses. Some of the lucky ones even got their own cars. It marked the halfway point in high school; it also brought a new level of maturity and responsibility as the sophomores realized that they, too, were growing up.

Only a Step Away

The junior class impressed Southwest this year with outstanding athletes, scholars, and excessive spirit in school-related functions.

The juniors were faced with many obligations and opportunities as they approached their senior year. Many dreaded Saturday mornings came and went as the SAT tests were taken, but all students knew these were important for college and future careers.

Another new experience for the junior class was to prepare the Junior-Senior Prom. Many plans had to be made and dates needed to be set, but the Prom became a special and memorable night for all.

All together the juniors worked diligently with individual effort and enthusiasm to make this year a perfect one for everybody.

Showing the advantage of being a senior, Lisa Wilson drives home after school.

Senior Impressions

"We're the best, and we'll survive because we're the class of '85," was heard throughout the school year by many seniors at Southwest High School. By this claim one gets the impression that the seniors were proud, confident and tough. They were ready to fight for anything; even Southwest, a battle in which they won.

Through the years the class of '85 has grown together to form a family. The friends they have made will be cherished for the rest of their lives. Soon they will follow different paths, but they will always have the Lasting Impressions of the friendships made in high school.

The seniors this year seemed to have that special touch. They wanted to make 1985 a year to remember, a year in which the impressions they have made will remain close within everyone. What was most impressive about the senior class of 1985? Their will and aggressiveness? Their close relationships? Or all the wonderful things the seniors have done for Southwest High School?

Brett Pool and Todd Peacock show what real friends are while eating lunch together.

By relaxing on his bus, James Frazier shows how laid-back seniors can be.

Scott Glidewell, Anthony Gill, Chris Carter, and Trevor Russel are Raider Busters in the Senior Skit.

The achievements I have made while attending high school and the education I have received and also being a Southwest Cowgirl is what impressed me most.

Buffy Sweet-Sweet,

Well, it looks like all this mess is about over. Every senior (especially us) knows it was a real drag. But there were some pretty good times. There was Parkers, the Library, paper towels, stoplight at Eastchester and Centennial, the beach!??, Godfathers, The Big Crash, It's a Fine Fine Day, and Under the Boardwalk. There was buying a rearview mirror, hamburgers in the pool, Steppenwolf, Deep Purple, Jimi Hendrix and Purple Haze. Playing spades with AG and SD. There was Advanced Biology, Cardinal Cove, Pink Ladies, the courts, the strobe light, AG's piece of hair, Inglenook wine (with a cork), the library parking lot with SD at UNC-G. There was a brown blazer, the day before the diet, Casey Jones. And then there was Epod our best friend. Remember how Epod got us thru all times — money or not. We owe him our sanity.

Thanks for making high school halfway bearable. Good Luck Always! and I am soooooo serious!

As the 1984-85 school year came to a close, we could honestly say that it had been a good one. We had a new administration which had come in and turned the school around, we had new teachers who had helped us and given us goals to reach for, and we also had friends who had been there in good times and in bad. There were not many of us who could say that this year had not been good — or even great! And there were not many of us who could not say that this year had truly left Lasting Impressions.

Maurice

Hi Maurice,
It's really been nice knowing you. I hope you stay in touch because you know where I live. Stay Sweet

Love
Leane

Knowing you has truly been a pleasure. Many times when I came into English, I didn't feel well and you made me feel better. I wish you much success in the future.

To Maurice
It's been nice knowing you, but you trying to be Michael Jackson will not stop messing with not everybody anyway and see you at "EVERGREEN"
Later, Yvonne Grogans.

Maurice,
It's been something knowing you. You been a really good friend. Stay mean and ugly.

Tracey,
 (Sory)
 The year has been great and last year was great next year won't be because you'll be gone. Well good luck in the world, I hope it can handle you cause I know you can handle it.
 Love you like a

Maurice,
 It has been my pleasure knowing you these few years. Now you are stepping out into the big world. Hope you have a nice future. Maybe get married and have a couple of kids!

Tracy,

To someone I have known
A short time and love your company.

Tracy we started out as friends but now we are lovers and I have no regrets. Tracy I have become very close to you. You a sweet, sexy, cute and your my (Baby)! and it would always be that way. Know one can or will be able to come between us. Tracy I don't have any regrets and I'm sure you don't either.

sorry but we just pulled out

Tracy a friend I know for about a year are so Tracy you are a nice person to have around. Good luck Tracy your friend
Tony Medley

Tracy,
we just met.
~~oops~~ and I already love like a brother.
I hate that this is your last year at South West cause I don't know who's gonna get Rick straight.
Good luck with Tony M. Keep cool kid 8/86.
Jonias.

Maurice,
knowing a considerate gentleman like you has been a pleasure.

Love Me Always

VERY NICE and

SWIFT guy who I have enjoyed knowing and being ^{with} for so short of time. Tracy as you know I care alot about you and I will NEVER hurt you under no circumstances.
I really hope that you can relate to my message because it IS coming from my heart. Even though you don't break me. Tracy I really hope that things have bettered us because you make me feel so secure and when I'm with you no one could hurt me, I really couldn't tell you why I feel this way about you but it's all coming from my heart.

Sorry helper but u just lucked out!!

Maurice - your a wild dude that I have known for a long time. Stay out of trouble and if you keep working they might send some of your art work off to one of those famous art museums! you'll see some of mine there (Ha, Ha) Don't forget some of those fun times in Homeroom! Take Care and Good luck in the future

Maurice, What's up? Hope your parents!
Well I don't know you very well but I'm saying I had a good time for the time I met you sorry I hit you. Have fun this summer bye, bye, Love ya

Maurice,
Can you wait until June 11 that's our graduation, don't forget. The past four years have been the greatest. Somehow you are always in my homeroom and English classes, it's like I can't get rid of you. You are one of my best friends and it has been fun. Good luck at college and with your future wherever you may be. Hope to see you in the summer and in the years to come. Don't forget my Tough car. See you later.

Colophon

Volume six of the Southwest Guilford High School Horizons 1985 was printed by Delmar Printing Company, Charlotte, NC. Mr. C. F. Boswell was the sales representative.

The cover is white, model design C8503, with green silk screen and a gold foil stamp. The paper stock is 80 pound Gloss Enamel. The endsheets are Glacier #120.

The typeface on dividers and endsheets is Times Roman Italic. Student Life and Sports are Century Schoolbook. Academics & Organizations is Souvenir Light. People is Korinna. Body Copy is 10 pt. Captions are 8 pt. and 6 pt. The senior portrait captions are 14 pt. Coronet Bold.

Horizons 1985 would not have been possible without the hard work and dedication of each staff member, who spent many extra hours drawing layouts, cropping pictures, and writing copy. We would like to thank our advisor, Miss Ruthann Tormey, for her constant encouragement, support, and assistance throughout the year. We would also like to thank Mr. C. F. Boswell, and Dr. George Frazier for their cooperation and assistance in producing this yearbook. Underclassmen portraits were taken by Mr. C. F. Boswell and Ms. Meena Wagstaff for Max-Ward Delmar Studios. The senior environmentals are by Vacaro Portraits of Lynchburg, Va.

The majority of Horizons 1985 is in column style. Student Life and Academics & Organizations are in 3 column, and Sports is in 4 column.

This year a $22.00 publications fee was charged to Southwest students. The yearbook staff was allotted $19.00, and the remaining $3.00 was given to the newspaper staff. Horizons 1985 had a press run of 400 copies and was distributed in May 1985.
